

ALL LINCOLN SCHOOLS . . .

Stanley Asking Title I Review

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley Wednesday said the state is "asking all (local schools) to review their (Title I) programs in the interest of making services available to all boys and girls."

But Stanley emphasized that local Title I programs will still have to fall within state constitutional restrictions.

"Under no circumstances will we ever approve" assigning "teachers or teacher aides in the parochial schools," he said.

Rejection Nixed

Asked to comment on news reports that a federal official believes the state is prepared to turn down the Lincoln Public Schools Title I program if Lincoln does not alter it, Stanley said the state "is not prepared to turn anything down."

Stanley said state education department officials will visit Lincoln and all other local districts with Title I programs in the near future to discuss administration of those programs.

"We are promising all programs we will make an on-site visitation," he said.

Would Concur

John Staehle, head of a U.S. Office of Education team that visited the state last week, was quoted Wednesday as saying he would concur with the state if it rules an unaltered Lincoln program inadequate.

Stanley stressed it is the state's responsibility to approve or reject programs submitted by local educational agencies which administer programs under Title I of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Any such decisions will not be made until all programs, including Lincoln's are viewed during the upcoming visitations, Stanley told The Star.

No Overall Changes

Anne Campbell, administrative assistant for governmental relations in the Lincoln Public Schools, said Wednesday that Lincoln is "not planning any changes in the overall (Title I) proposal."

Possible changes on how those program activities "are delivered" will await the visit from the State Education Department, she said.

Noting the Lincoln schools are awaiting a final report from the team Staehle headed, Dr. Campbell said: "We would like to wait until all the facts are in."

The federal team visited the state to review Title I programs after Roman Catholic educators complained that federal guidelines were being violated. They said "comparable" services were not being provided educationally deprived private school-children.

'HEALTH CARE A RIGHT'

Issue Equal Service Regardless Of Cash

. . . Says President-Elect Of APHA

Minneapolis, Minn. (AP) — "Health care is a basic right, just like public education," says a North Carolina nurse who is the new president-elect of the American Public Health Association.

The nurse, Mrs. Margaret B. Dolan, was elected to the second highest position of the 25,000-member organization Wednesday at its 99th annual meeting and will become president in 1972.

The association encompasses a broad representation of health care personnel, including physicians, nurses, social workers, dentists, medical technicians and others.

Mrs. Dolan, 57, who is professor and head of the public health nursing department at the University of North Carolina, discussed public health issues in an interview on the eve of her uncontested election.

The primary issue in public health, she said, is the reorganization of health care delivery so that the rich and the poor get the same quality of service.

And, she said, the providers of health care must be held accountable to the public.

Consumers 'Should Control'

Consumers must be involved more and more in making decisions about health care delivery, she said, and "they should control the system."

The system traditionally has been organized for the benefit of the providers rather than the consumers, she said.

There is no question but that there is going to be some kind of national health insurance plan, Mrs. Dolan said. "We are never going to be able to provide the level of health care we have the potential of providing without some kind of national system."

More emphasis should be placed on preventive medicine so that more illness is prevented, she said, but pointed out that many people are too poor to afford preventive medical attention under the present system.

'Cost Now Is Prohibitive'

"The cost now is practically prohibitive," she said. "People don't seek health care until they're too sick to work. To many people in our society, you're not sick until you hurt and hurt real bad. This has got to change."

It is cheaper to prevent illness than to treat it, she noted, and said health professionals must involve themselves in helping eliminate things in the environment which are detrimental to health—such as noxious automobile fumes.

Mrs. Dolan emphasized that health care must involve a team and said doctors must surrender some of their authority and traditional practices to others, such as nurses and community health workers.

There is a growing willingness on the part of many doctors to do just this, she said, and pointed to the expanded role of members of her own profession in providing health care.

"We could go a long way toward answering some health manpower problems if we could break down traditional ideas about roles," Mrs. Dolan said.

Fourth Woman Head

Mrs. Dolan will be the fourth woman to head the APHA and will succeed Dr. Myron E. Wegman, dean of the University of Michigan School of Public Health at the end of his 1971-72 term as president. One of the earlier women presidents was a nurse, and the other two were physicians.

Mrs. Dolan has been active in the APHA for 25 years and has served on its executive board. She has served as a nursing consultant to the federal government, and has been particularly involved in tuberculosis and venereal disease control programs.

Her husband, Charles, is director of administrative service for the University of North Carolina physics department.

Mrs. Dolan is a graduate of the Georgetown University School of Nursing in Washington, D.C., and holds degrees from the University of North Carolina and Columbia University. Duke University awarded her an honorary doctorate.

Democratic Old Guard Defeats Reformer

Washington (UPI) — Patricia Roberts Harris won the key temporary credentials chairmanship for the 1972 Democratic National Convention Wednesday as the party's national committee crushed a reform candidate who had support from three presidential hopefuls.

Mrs. Harris, former ambassador to Luxembourg and the candidate of Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, beat Sen. Harold E. Hughes by a lopsided 72-31 margin.

Hughes charged before the vote that savage tactics had been used against him.

After the vote, however, National Committeeman George Mitchell of Maine, representing Democratic presidential front-runner Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, moved to make Mrs. Harris' nomination unanimous.

The committee approved his resolution in a clear effort to repair any damaged party unity in the spirited fight for the credentials post.

HHH Wary Of Split

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota warned the delegates that they would forfeit the election as they did in 1968 if they allowed the dispute to reopen the old guard-militant reform wounds.

Shortly before deciding the Harris-Hughes contest, the national committee issued its final call for the 1972 convention and unanimously adopted the new reform rules which will cover proceedings there.

Hughes, the Iowan who took himself out of the running for the nomination earlier this year, said before the vote that "the tactics used against me indicate the vote is so close they must be scared. Internal savagery has been unleashed against me."

Hughes, taking part in the intense lobbying prior to the vote, said he had traced much of the opposition to his candidacy to Alexander Barkin, head of COPE, the political arm of the AFL-CIO.

He accused Barkin of "telling people that I'm some kind of a liberal nut."

'I'm Not A Nut'

"I'm not some kind of nut out to ruin the Democratic Party," Hughes declared. "I've been trying to rebuild and strengthen the party for three years. Win or lose, I will continue."

Hughes was supported by militant reformers, generally those who supported the late Robert F. Kennedy or former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy at the tumultuous 1968

Democratic convention in Chicago.

Mrs. Harris was considered the old guard candidate and particularly the choice of O'Brien.

Speaking at a luncheon for committee members, Sen. Fred Harris and McGovern reiterated their support for Hughes. Muskie said he did not publicly urge support for the Iowa senator, although his personal support was well known.

Humphrey and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, both possible candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, warned against dissension and divisiveness which could hurt the party's chances in next year's elections.

North, South Korean Talks Cordial

The New York Times

By HENRY KAMM

Panmunjom, Korea — Clinking their beer glasses in a farewell toast, South and North Korean negotiators smilingly agreed Wednesday to try again next Wednesday after failing to set a date for the opening of full-scale talks on the humanitarian problems left by the fighting that ended 18 years ago.

The end of the meeting halted a four-hour display of mutual affection between North and South Koreans for which Koreans could recall no precedent since the end of World War II, which replaced Japanese occupation with the division of the country followed by a protracted war and bitter truce.

About 150 newsmen covering the talks warmly pumped hands, slapped backs, and men and women whose governments do not recognize each other nor officially consider their civil war ended, strolled up and down with their arms about one another.

No Progress

The scene outside the meeting room was matched, insofar as such camaraderie is possible between official delegations of hostile parties, by the two five-man teams inside and their staffs. No progress was reported in four hours of stubborn talking about a single point, but voices remained invariably friendly, there was much joshing and laughing and ample quantities of North Korean cider, soda and, when it appeared that the meeting was stalled, beer was consumed.

The point at issue was the date for the opening of plenary meetings between "Red Cross" delegations of the two Koreas on the problem of families divided by the demilitarized zone. In three earlier sessions, agreement was reached that the conferences would be held

$300 Reward Offered In Murder Of Vostados

Gering (AP) — Scotts Bluff County commissioners Wednesday approved an offer of a $300 reward by the county attorney's office for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed Patrick Vostados of Gering last Aug. 21.

Vostados was shot seven times and his body was found on a county road.

County Atty. Marvin Holscher also asked the public to contact him with any information that might help in the investigation.

Students Being Urged To Help Form College Level 'Nader's Raiders' Group

By CHARLIE HARPSTER
Star Staff Writer

Students in Lincoln, Omaha and Fremont will be getting together the next few weeks in an attempt to organize a statewide "Nader's Raiders" group designed to pursue "constructive social change benefiting all citizens of Nebraska."

After talking to students at Creighton University, UNO students in Omaha and at Midland College in Fremont, Brent English told about 12 UNL students how they could "expand a sense of fulfillment into a sense of success" by forming such a group.

He said formation of the Nebraska Public Interest Research Group (NEPIRG) could bring about sweeping changes in Nebraska within five years.

"The largest albatross in the state," English said, is welfare administration. Also needing attention in Nebraska, he said, are the landlord-tenant relations, the meatpacking industry and consumer protection in the marketplace.

To "mold a professional sense of activity," English said, a "full-time staff of full-time professionals" — lawyers, scientists, economists, community organizers — would be hired.

Students would work closely with the NEPIRG staff, either as part of regular classwork, as volunteers, or as part-time paid employees, English said.

The staff, "by using every element of the legal system," will work to insure that corporate and governmental responsibility are "as well articulated and represented in public policy decision-making as are corporate and other special interests."

The professional staff could help overcome the lack of political, legal and social expertise that has handicapped student groups in the past, he said.

English, 23, has been speaking to college students throughout the country in an attempt to start similar groups under Nader's direction.

He described a newly formed group in Oregon which won, within three months of its formation, a court decision against a university which had been paying women employees $4,000 a year less than men doing the same job.

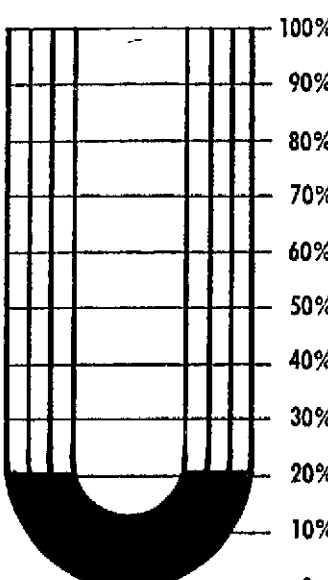

English said government involvement in public issues reached a low point last year, with students more interested in "throwing Frisbees or eating watermelon." But today, he said, student activism over public interest problems is making a comeback.

NEPIRG would be a non-profit, non-partisan group financed by a $1.50 a semester increase in student fees, provided the increase is approved by students and the Board of Regents. English said a refund plan similar to NU's student-supported, low-income scholarship fund could be worked out.

The college chapters would elect boards, which would select a state-wide board, which in turn would set up the full-time professional staff. Through regular public meetings, the college chapters would develop potential areas of interest to be explored by the state-wide board.

alternately in the respective capitals, Seoul and Pyongyang.

The North Koreans proposed Wednesday that the first full meeting be held on Dec. 10. The South Koreans want an agenda and the security arrangements for the talks to be decided before setting the date and the place of the first meeting. The talks here constitute the first formal contacts between the two Koreans.

Don't Be Pushed

Because of the importance the South Korean government attaches to the talks, despite their designation as non-governmental Red Cross meetings, the Seoul delegation is under instructions not to be pushed by the other side.

Of the five delegation members, one is known to belong to the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency and another had resigned from the diplomatic service before being assigned to the delegation. He said, however, that he was a member of the Junior Red Cross in high school.

Little was known before the agreement to hold the talks of existence of a North Korean Red Cross.

County Democratic Women Hope To Capture Party Chairmanship

A number of Lancaster County Democratic women are intent on electing one of their own as chairman of the party's county organization next year.

And they already have a prospect in mind — Mrs. Yvonne Hardesty of Lincoln.

The women, it was understood, have privately discussed their plans on a number of occasions, and the matter was raised Wednesday night at a meeting of the Democratic Women's Club.

Mrs. Hardesty acknowledged that the idea has been "sort of kicked around lately."

Asked if she is ready to become a candidate for the party leadership post, Mrs. Hardesty said the prospect strikes her as "an interesting possibility."

"It would be a tremendously fine honor, but a tremendously big job."

Mrs. Hardesty has been involved in most major Democratic campaigns since 1966. She is a former president of the Lancaster County Democratic Women's Club.

County Chairman Charles Palsen Jr. said he has made no decision on whether he would seek re-election at the party's county convention next spring.

Informed that some Democratic women are planning to back Mrs. Hardesty for the post of chairman, Palsen said: "She'd be a good one."

Palsen said it would be healthy for the party if a number of people decide to seek the chairmanship. "I hope a lot of people consider it," he noted.

Palsen, a Lincoln attorney, was elected chairman in June of 1970.

County convention delegates will be selected at the primary election next May 9. The convention will meet June 1 to elect county party officers.

Parents To Dominate Panels On Spending Aid For Needy

... Slum Teachers Offered Hazardous Duty Pay

reading and mathematics instruction, in the 1,600 local school districts with heavy enrollment of children from poor families.

Title I federal funds to bring basic services in needy schools up to the level of other schools. An HEW spokesman said Congress intended this expense to be borne by state and local governments, with Title I funds to be used for "special" services for poor children.

Use of Title I funds to offer hazardous duty pay as an incentive for teachers to take jobs in slum district schools was approved by Richardson even though local officials have expressed little interest in the idea, a spokesman said.

The main reason, he said, is an overabundance of teachers looking for jobs and presumably willing to teach even in slum schools without added financial incentives.

Of greater immediate impact is the rule requiring districts educating nearly eight million needy children under Title I to give their parents a voice in how those programs are planned and operated.

Parents in these school districts must comprise "more than a simple majority" of the new independent councils and have free access to any documents they need to understand the local Title I program.

The councils would not have veto powers but must be consulted and allowed to make recommendations on how federal money is used for educating their children.

Richardson rejected proposals that the councils be elected rather than appointed and that they be formed at each needy school in a district, rather than for an entire district.

Big Hike In Aid Urged For Minority-Owned Business

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon proposed Wednesday a 20-fold increase to $63.6 million in federal aid for minority-owned business enterprises to help redeem his 1968 campaign promise to foster "black capitalism."

Nationality is any longer an obstacle to full participation in the American marketplace," Nixon said in a message to Congress.

A highlight of his proposals would be increased federal assistance to Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Companies (MESBIC), private firms which guarantee bank loans to Negro, Spanish-speaking, American Indian and other minority businessmen.

The government provides $2 in working capital for every $1 in private capital raised by a MESBIC, with $150,000 in private funds needed under law to organize. The federal ante rises to $3 when private capital reaches $1 million, a level Nixon proposed Wednesday to reduce to $500,000 to allow greater government contributions.

Nixon asked Congress to boost his current $3.6 million Office of Minority Business Enterprise budget request to $43.6 million this year and to $3.6 million in the 12 months starting next July 1. He said 90% of the money would be spent locally to "identify, train, advise or assist minority businessmen."

SEXTON ... manages wave from Army ambulance.

Sexton Meets Parents In Denver

Denver (UPI) — Army S. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., described as in good condition following two years in a Communist prison camp and a 70-mile walk through jungle to freedom, Wednesday ended a 30-hour flight from Saigon with a kiss for his parents from his stretcher.

"From the way he looked, I don't think he'll be in the hospital very long," the elder Sexton said.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird ordered a thorough review of all files on missing or captured U.S. soldiers to eliminate another "mistake" such as the one made on a letter written by Sexton to his parents.

Letter Held Up
Laird told a press conference a letter written by Sexton seven days after his capture Aug. 12, 1969, languished in Saigon for two years. As a result his family did not know if he had been killed or captured.

"I think a mistake was made in the field and when a mistake is made the best thing to do is admit it," Laird said.

The letter, addressed to "whoever is concerned," was handwritten. But U.S. officials in Saigon made a typewritten copy which they forwarded to Washington, Laird said. Washington officials, unsure who had composed the letter, listed Sexton as missing in action.

Not until this summer did

a news conference Wednesday they hoped their son's release might signal an exchange of prisoners of war in the Indochina conflict. Army officials would not allow their son out of his hospital bed, but said he would be available for interviews later in the week.

Referring to possible negotiations with the Communists, the father said, "I've always felt you could catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

2 Women On List For Supreme Court

Washington — The Nixon administration has sent the names of six persons, including two women, to be investigated by the American Bar Association as potential nominees to the Supreme Court.

The four men on the list are all from Southern or border states, which indicates that the vacant "Southern seat" is likely to be filled by a man, assuming that President Nixon follows tradition and does not name two Southerners at once.

The other appointment would go to the first woman to be nominated to the Supreme Court.

Informed sources here said that the following names were referred to the ABA's Judicial Fitness Committee Wednesday.

—Sen Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who has figured prominently in earlier speculation. His record fits the conservative "strict constructionist" philosophy favored by President Nixon, but his former membership in the Ku Klux Klan makes him a controversial candidate.

—Hershel H. Friday of Little Rock, Ark., a municipal bond lawyer who has also defended the Little Rock public school system against integration suits.

—Judge Paul H. Roney of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was appointed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to fill the seat vacated by G. Harrold Carswell after his Supreme Court nomination was rejected by the Senate.

—Judge Charles Clark of Jackson, Miss., another member of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which has jurisdiction over the Deep South. As a lawyer he defended former Gov. Ross Barnett from contempt of court charges brought after he tried to block desegregation of the University of Mississippi.

—Judge Mildred Loree Lillie of Los Angeles, a former prosecuting lawyer and trial judge who currently sits on the California Court of Appeal in Los Angeles.

—Judge Silvia Bacon, a trial judge on the Superior Court for the District of Columbia. As a Justice Department lawyer she helped draft the District of Columbia crime bill that has become well known for its preventive detention and "no knock" search provisions.

Washington — Congressional sources said an effort would be made on Capitol Hill to give the Senate a veto over President Nixon's appointees to the Pay Board and the Price Commission that will oversee the controls that will follow the wage-price freeze.

Potential Nominees Named

Washington — President Nixon sent the names of four men and two women to the American Bar Association for investigation as potential Supreme Court nominees. (More on Page 2.)

Demos Elect Mrs. Harris

Washington — By a vote of 72 to 31, the Democratic National Committee elected Mrs. Patricia Roberts Harris, a black lawyer, as temporary chairman of the credentials committee for the 1972 Democratic National Convention. (More on Page 1.)

VW Raises Prices 7%

Basin Harbour, Vt. — Volkswagen raised the prices of most of its 1972 model cars by 6.8% — making the price of the Beetle, the basic Volkswagen, higher than that of the main American mini-cars. A similar price increase was announced by Datsun. (More on Page 21.)

Budget Increase Sought

Washington — In a message to Congress, President Nixon asked for an increase in the budget for the Office of Minority Business Enterprise. (More on Page 2.)

Parents To Dominate Panels
On Spending Aid For Needy

... Slum Teachers Offered Hazardous Duty Pay

Washington (UPI) — The government issued new regulations Wednesday requiring creation of parent-dominated advisory councils on how federal funds are spent for needy school children, and offering the first hazard pay for teachers in slum schools.

The rules, effective Thursday for the current school year, were signed by Secretary Elliot L. Richardson of Health, Education and Welfare to govern spending of $1.5 billion under Title I of the 1965 elementary and secondary education act.

Title I, the largest of all federal educational aid programs, is intended to help provide special services, primarily reading and mathematics instruction, in the 1,600 local school districts with heavy enrollment of children from poor families.

Another regulation, to be effective in the 1973-74 school year, would prohibit use of Title I federal funds to bring basic services in needy schools up to the level of other schools. An HEW spokesman said Congress intended this expense to be borne by state and local governments, with Title I funds to be used for "special" services for poor children.

Use of Title I funds to offer hazardous duty pay as an incentive for teachers to take jobs in slum district schools was approved by Richardson even though local officials have expressed little interest in the idea, a spokesman said.

The main reason, he said, is an overabundance of teachers looking for jobs and presumably willing to teach even in slum schools without added financial incentives.

Of greater immediate impact is the rule requiring districts educating nearly eight million needy children under Title I to give their parents a voice in how those programs are planned and operated.

Parents in these school districts must comprise "more than a simple majority" of the new independent councils and have free access to any documents they need to understand the local Title I program.

The councils would not have veto powers but must be consulted and allowed to make recommendations on how federal money is used for educating their children.

Richardson rejected proposals that the councils be elected rather than appointed and that they be formed at each needy school in a district, rather than for an entire district.

Sexton Meets Parents In Denver

Denver (UPI) — Army S. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., described as in good condition following two years in a Communist prison camp and a 70-mile walk through jungle to freedom, Wednesday ended a 30-hour flight from Saigon with a kiss for his parents from his stretcher.

"From the way he looked, I don't think he'll be in the hospital very long," the elder Sexton said.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird ordered a thorough review of all files on missing or captured U.S. soldiers to eliminate another "mistake" such as the one made on a letter written by Sexton to his parents.

Letter Held Up

Laird told a press conference a letter written by Sexton seven days after his capture Aug. 12, 1969, languished in Saigon for two years. As a result his family did not know if he had been killed or captured.

"I think a mistake was made in the field and when a mistake is made the best thing to do is admit it," Laird said.

The letter, addressed to "whoever is concerned," was handwritten. But U.S. officials in Saigon made a typewritten copy which they forwarded to Washington, Laird said. Washington officials, unsure who had composed the letter, listed Sexton as missing in action.

Not until this summer did they learn the original was handwritten. Sexton then was switched from the missing to the captured category, but the change came only three days before the soldier's release.

Critics of the military have charged the letter was withheld because it painted the Viet Cong in a good light. Sexton did not praise the Viet Cong in his 103-word note, but he wrote that his wounds "have all been treated well."

Sexton's parents said during a news conference Wednesday they hoped their son's release might signal an exchange of prisoners of war in the Indochina conflict. Army officials would not allow their son out of his hospital bed, but said he would be available for interviews later in the week.

Referring to possible negotiations with the Communists, the father said, "I've always felt you could catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Big Hike In Aid Urged For Minority-Owned Business

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon proposed Wednesday a 20-fold increase to $63.6 million in federal aid for minority-owned business enterprises to help redeem his 1968 campaign promise to foster "black capitalism."

"Both morally and economically, we will not realize the full potential of our nation until neither race nor nationality is any longer an obstacle to full participation in the American marketplace," Nixon said in a message to Congress.

A highlight of his proposals would be increased federal assistance to Minority Business Enterprise Small Business Investment Companies (MESBIC), private firms which guarantee bank loans to Negro, Spanish-speaking, American Indian and other minority businessmen.

The government provides $2 in working capital for every $1 in private capital raised by a MESBIC, with $150,000 in private funds needed under law to organize. The federal ante rises to $3 when private capital reaches $1 million, a level Nixon proposed Wednesday to reduce to $500,000 to allow greater government contributions.

Nixon asked Congress to boost his current $3.6 million Office of Minority Business Enterprise budget request to $43.6 million this year and to $3.6 million in the 12 months starting next July 1. He said 90% of the money would be spent locally to "identify, train, advise or assist minority businessmen."

Retired Blair Farmer Seeks Valuable Goods

Blair (U) — "It's a gamble — we could lose our shirts." Reuben Kay, a retired Blair area farmer, explained a hazard he and two partners might face if his unusual method of detecting valuable goods should fail.

Kay uses an instrument similar to old time witching wands.

The 63-year-old man and his partners, Ray Anderson and Harry Sorensen, have been digging for sunken steamships in Anderson's fields for about four years.

The ships, believed to have carried valuable cargo such as gold and silver, met disastrous fates in the mid 19th century while traveling upstream on the Missouri River.

"The river changed routes so many times it was hard to keep real good maps of it," Kay said. "But, we knew the river, at one time, passed right through this field and I used my instruments to find out where some sunken ships might be."

Kay explained he used his multi-purpose rod, a small wooden dowel with a thin triangle of metal on the end, to detect the ship he is now digging for in Anderson's field.

"With this," Kay said pointing his wand toward the highway, "I found out there were ships buried all over this area. I knew that most of them carried gold, so I investigated further with other dowels and I can tell you exactly what one ship carried and where everything on it is located."

Kay then followed a path directed by his "magic wand" and marked off exact measurements of a 212-foot ship, located what he believes is a supply of whiskey, some shelves of dishes and even the remains of those who lost their lives in the wreck.

Each of Kay's wooden wands has a different article taped to the end. One has gold, another silver and even one has a piece of bone on the end for detection of bodies.

Right now, Kay and his partners are attempting to unearth a ship they believe to be filled with gold and other valuable.

The men have no estimate of when they will hit pay dirt on the present project, but Kay said one thing is sure — "we won't quit 'til we do."

Omaha Tribal Council Named Action Agency

Macy (U) — The Omaha Indian Tribal Council was notified by the Indian Division of the Office of Economic Opportunity that the council has been designated as the Indian Community Action Agency for the Omaha Indian reservation.

The council was told it will receive an initial OEO Grant of $31,000 to set up the agency, said Wayne Tyndall, council secretary.

The agency will administer federal programs such as Project Head Start and Operation Mainstream, Tyndall said.

He said the Indian Community action program at the University of South Dakota at Vermillion will provide the new agency at Macy with technical assistance and managerial training.

Seven community Action programs which had been administered on the Omaha reservation by the Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency of Walthill, Neb., were discontinued Sept. 1 after conflicts between the agency and the Omaha Tribe. The tribal council voted last November to withdraw from the Goldenrod agency and to establish its own agency served by the Indian desk of the OEO.

Tyndall said one reason the council passed the resolution to withdraw its participation from the Walthill Agency was because several members of the Omaha tribe who worked for Goldenrod had been fired.

Programs which had been administered by the Goldenrod agency were Project Head Start, VISTA, ALIVE, Operation Mainstream, the community organization program, Neighborhood Youths Corps and Neighborhood Service System. Tribal Council Chairman Edward Cline said he believes all the programs will be continued under the new agency at Macy.

Cline also announced Tuesday that the Omaha tribe has received $34,000 Emergency Employment Act grant which will employ six persons in community service positions.

Attorney Says Bus Company Can't Afford To Reduce Fare

Omaha (U) — Robert Skochdopole, attorney for Omaha Transit Co., told the State Railway Commission Wednesday, the firm would lose $200,000 a year if it reduced bus fares for senior citizens.

Skochdopole made the comment at a hearing on the request of the Omaha Senior Citizens' Council for a fare reduction from 40 cents to 20 cents for persons 62 years and older.

He said Omaha transit objects to reduced fares because it is a "life or death matter for us" and because it would violate the state constitution and statutes.

Reduced fares for the elderly "probably is reasonable and humanitarian" and that "years ago, we could afford to grant a reduced fare."

Although the Senior Citizen's Council originally asked for a seven-day-per-week fare reduction during non-rush hours, an attorney for the council suggested an alternative.

Attorney Howard Kaiman asked the Railway Commission to reduce fares for a trial period of 120 days one day a week. He asked the commission to "set a fair and reasonable rate for non-rush hours."

Originally the council had asked reduced fares from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to midnight Monday through Friday. No time limits would be in effect Saturdays, Sundays and holidays for a one-year period under this proposal.

United Fund Reaches 21%

The Lincoln-Lancaster United Fund Wednesday reached 21% of its $1,207,639 goal, with total contributions of $255,413, according to chairman Walter G. Stephenson Jr.

Bryan Memorial Hospital made a 33% increase in contributions over last year with $16,000. Larry Bartels, president of the Bryan Memorial Hospital Employee's Charitable Fund, said "The 800 employees of Bryan Hospital feel that as citizens of the community, we want to contribute to solving its problems, and we think the United Fund is the best method to help."

Stephenson reported the division results to date are: loaned executives, $6,956; women's $6,427; special gifts, $49,726; business, $17,248; education, $41,022; government, $24,216; and unit firms, $109,818.

With a nearly completed campaign, Cengas reported a contribution of $24,428. This represents gifts from the corporation, executives, employees and members of I.B.E.W. Local No. 244. The Lincoln Public Schools has reported a contribution of $41,022 to date, and the state government employees campaign reports contributions of $9,997.

Security Council Expansion Urged

Santa Barbara, Calif. (UPI) — Expansion of the United Nations Security Council to include Communist China, India, Japan and Germany was proposed Wednesday by Prof. Neil Jacoby, former adviser to President Eisenhower.

Jacoby, now an associate at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, suggested in the center's publication that the U.N. charter should be revised to enlarge the original setup of five permanent members on the council.

Charles Dobry Dies Of Burns

St. Paul (U) — Charles Dobry, former long time Howard County attorney, died in a hospital early Wednesday of burns suffered several hours earlier in a fire at his St. Paul home.

Assistant Fire Chief William

Harvey said the fire started in a chair and Dobry apparently attempted to pull the chair out from the front door, but was unable to do so and the front portion of the home was badly damaged by the flames.

WITNESSES MEET SENATORS DURING BREAK

House Committee OKs Blue River Compact

Washington — Congressman Charles Thone's bill requesting Congress to consent to the Kansas Nebraska Big Blue River Compact was approved Wednesday by the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, a Thone assistant said.

The compact is designed to equitably apportion the waters of the Big Blue River Basin between the two states while recognizing the federal interest involved, Jerry Jorgensen said in a telephone interview.

Jorgensen said the compact also will encourage pollution abatement and orderly development of the basin area.

Appearing in support of the bill were Dan S. Jones, Jr., director of the Nebraska Dept.

of Water Resources and Elmo W. McClendon of the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers in Omaha, the appointed federal representative on the Big Blue River Compact commission.

Thone testified in favor of the bill Oct. 7 before the subcommittee on irrigation and reclamation.

The compact was signed Jan. 25, ratified by Kansas Apr. 2 and by Nebraska Apr. 5. Before final approval, the bill requires affirmative action by the House and Senate and public hearings. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Roman Hruska (R-Neb.)

Site Is Guarded

London (U) — Stonehenge, the mysterious prehistoric circle of altar-like stones, is now guarded by electronic geophones. Authorities say the underground listening devices sent out alarms whenever someone approaches the fenced-off site while it is closed to visitors.

Nebraska campaign coordinator Lou Lamberty said during the rest of Martin's three-day stay, he will be meeting people on an informal basis.

No Change Seen In Condition Of Cozad Woman

Washington (U) — The condition of a Cozad, Neb., woman under treatment at the National Cancer Institute for a rare blood disease was described Wednesday as "approximately the same although somewhat better in brain functions."

Mrs. James Franzen, 23, who is suffering from porphyria, "has some reflexes back and has more voluntary movement," said Dr. Joel Levine. However, he added, the overall condition of the disease is approximately the same.

He said preliminary studies were to be completed "before we consider using experimental procedures."

Such procedures, he said, might include "the use of certain blood products biochemically active to cause the porphyria to go into remission."

Dr. Levine described acute intermittent porphyria, with which Mrs. Franzen is suffering, as "a disease of abnormal metabolism" which strikes the components that make up hemoglobin.

He set its frequency at three to five per 100,000 persons.

Wife Witnesses Husband's Death

Stroudsburg, Pa. (UPI) — As his wife watched in horror, a Nebraska truck driver was killed when he was hit by a tractor-trailer rig while repairing his own rig on Interstate 80 near here.

The victim was Garrett Boyle, 43, (Box 194) Dakota City, Neb.

State Police said Boyle was thrown 15 feet by the impact as his wife, Jeannette, looked on from the cab of his truck. She was treated for shock and released from Monroe County Hospital.

Police said the second rig was driven by Daniel Moser, 48, Berwick. He was released after questioning by state police. No charges were filed immediately.

Nursing Program Is Elevated

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University has elevated its nursing program to the status of college of nursing, the university said.

The college replaces the former Department of Nursing, which was under the college of arts and sciences. The chief administrator of the college will henceforth be a dean and general jurisdiction of the new college will be placed under the vice president for health sciences.

Miller Heads Exchange Team

Peru — Don Miller, director of student financial aids at Peru State College, will be leader of a Rotary Study Exchange team to Chili, in late October.

Granted a leave of absence by the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges, Miller will serve as a team leader and the district Rotary Governor's representative on the people to people study exchange. Their work will be in the area of Conepcion, in central Chili, and will continue through December 17.

Radio Station Bid Approved

Blair (U) — Dana College has received Federal Communications Commission approval for construction of a 10 watt educational FM radio station on the campus.

President E. R. Mezo said call letters will be selected soon and school officials hope to begin broadcasting sometime during the second semester.

10-Year-Old Boy Honored

Beatrice (U) — A 10-year-old Beatrice lad, David Webber, has been awarded the Boy Scout Medal of Merit for rescuing his younger brother, Phillip, 6. David is credited with kicking a sow that had attacked and bitten his brother, and carrying the younger boy to safety.

'Paralyzed' Prisoner Flees

Omaha (UPI) — John Oviatt, 27, a prisoner in city jail, complained about "paralysis" in his legs and was transported to county hospital in a wheel chair.

While there, he apparently made a complete recovery. Police said that while momentarily unguarded Oviatt fled the wheel chair and disappeared, barefooted but presumably walking.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

When the 1971 Legislature created eight area technical community college districts, it had a very good idea in mind. What it intended to do was provide a unified administration for all the junior colleges and technical schools in the state and eliminate the development of overlapping and useless duplication.

There is probably a good chance that this will be accomplished but not without a lot more political infighting than most people thought when the legislation was adopted. The Lincoln and Southeast Nebraska area offer an example of some of what might be found in possibly all the other eight districts.

While the districts are established, their boundaries are not set, with the possible exception of Omaha and Lincoln. In our reading of the bill, there is some question as to whether Lincoln and Omaha are intended as units by themselves or as larger operations.

But judging from the activity now going on, one must assume that Lincoln, at least, could stay as it is or could be expanded to include other counties. The assumption is based on the fact that efforts are under way to place all of Lancaster County except Lincoln in what will become the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area.

In this effort, there appears to be a recognition that Lancaster and other counties in the 17-to-20-county region involved could be joined with the Lincoln Technical Community College operation or with the Southeast Nebraska area, the latter undoubtedly to be centered around the State Technical School at Millard.

This introduces what might have been the state's first mistake. Rather than letting local areas decide which region they want to join, the state might well have set the boundaries of the various districts themselves as well as establishing the number of such districts at eight.

This may sound autocratic but the alternative could produce some real inequities. If the vast majority of counties in the Vision 17 area, for instance, wanted and voted to join Lincoln, the Milford operation probably could not survive.

If Lancaster and all other Vision 17 counties leave Lincoln all by itself, Lincoln could operate but it would be done an injustice and a lot of people would be inconvenienced. We can conceive of situations developing whereby an area might be left with such a small tax base ($300 million is the legal minimum for existence under state law) that the allowable one-mill levy could not support the operation.

If Lincoln is left alone, its assessed valuation tax base, on 1970-71 figures, would be $3.6 million as compared to $8.7 million for the rest of the Southeast Nebraska region. But Lincoln would be serving a student population nearly equal to that of the rest of the entire area.

Putting Lincoln in with Cass, Otoe and Saunders Counties gives that area a valuation base of $570 million as compared to $655 million for the remaining 13 counties that could be joined with Milford. The student population in the 10-through-12-grade category would be 9,770 for Lincoln and 8,089 for Milford.

The student disparity could be nearly equalled if Saunders joined the Milford operation rather than Lincoln. And a split combining Lancaster, Cass, Otoe and perhaps Saunders makes geographic sense as opposed to sending students from those counties through Lincoln and on to Milford.

It is a farce to argue that rural residents would not want to join the high tax district of Lincoln. When all eight districts are finally formalized by 1973, each will have the identical one-mill property tax levy limit so it will make no difference tax-wise in which district citizens find themselves.

Some have suggested that Southeast Nebraska needs only one technical community college. Perhaps, but such a suggestion is not a practical political one. It also has some liabilities when you consider that we are talking about some 4,400 youths and adults now availing themselves of both Milford and Lincoln operations—quite a few to put into one operation and a long way, geographically, to move them.

We predict some spirited discussions before this question is settled and expect refinements in the law by the 1972 Legislature.

Tragic History Of Tartars In Losing Their Identity

LONDON — So much is published about discrimination against Jews in the Soviet Union that it is frequently forgotten that other nationalities endure persecution under communism. The jubilee of the Crimean Autonomous Republic, founded by Lenin on Oct. 18, 1921, will not be celebrated in Russia. The reason is that these Tartars — descendants of Genghis Khan's Golden Horde — have become an unpeople.

More than 250,000 Tartar men, women and children were deported at gunpoint during World War II. Soviet expert Edward Craikshaw reports in the London Observer that in 1941 they were herded into cattle wagons and transported to Central Asia on Stalin's orders. The bodies of the thousands who died along the way from hunger and disease were simply dumped from the rolling stock.

Although the Crimean Tartars were "politically rehabilitated" in 1957, this was something of a posthumous vindication. They have not been granted the restoration of their national autonomy nor have they been permitted to repatriate.

"No sane person can understand how it is possible to accuse whole peoples, including women, children and old folks, of treason," said Nikita Khrushchev in his secret speech to the Twentieth Party Congress in 1958. The late party secretary virtually accused Stalin of genocide. However, with Stalin's ghost still a major preoccupation in the Kremlin, rehabilitating the Tartars might revive some embarrassing memories.

Robert Conquest's book, "The Nation Killer," suggests that seven separate peoples — the Kalmyks, the Chechens, Ingushes, Karachais, Balkars, Volga Germans and Tartars, together numbering more than 1.5 million people — were dispersed by Stalin in World War II. The excuse for these deportations was that Stalin thought they might collaborate on a mass basis with the Nazis.

The Soviet treatment of these groups in the postwar era is a painful illustration of what Conquest calls the "aberrance of the whole Soviet order." Although European Russians vigorously deny that they practice chauvinism, Asiatic Russians have long accused them of trying to suppress their national aspirations.

The Tartars have been trying for years to present their case, resting on legal constitutional rights for the re-establishment of their Republic. The Kremlin has tried to keep news about such activities from leaking to the outside world. When delegations of Tartars go to Moscow to demand an audience with officials, they are promptly rounded up by the police and removed under guard from the city.

"The Chronicle of Current Events," a Russian underground publication, devotes much attention to the persecution of the Tartars. And Maj. Gen. Pyotr Grigorenko, one of the leading dissenters, campaigned for a restoration of Tartar rights before he was incarcerated in a lunatic asylum.

Tartars are refused residence permits in the Crimea. Those who try to return to their homeland are evicted, imprisoned or expelled, reports the Guardian. The Ukrainians who have settled on Tartar lands are afraid of losing their property. But the Kremlin must always worry about the loyalty of minority groups who were deported to central Asia and who may some day seek revenge.

Nixon Program Helped

President Nixon won key support for his Phase II economic policy Tuesday when labor chiefs representing about 85% of the nations union members agreed to cooperate with the administration's post-freeze program of economic controls. The question is, how meaningful is that support?

It was a big first step for the President, whose promise that the Cost of Living Council would not overrule decisions of the wage and price review boards prompted labor leaders to accept seats on the Pay Board, which also represents industry and the public.

As Nixon noted, "The experience in other countries which have tried programs of wage and price restraint without the support of organized labor is that such programs inevitably break down."

But the labor leaders hedged their promise of cooperation by announcing that they would continue to oppose Nixon's proposals for tax relief for business and industry, that they would set up their own review panels across the country to keep an eye on price increases and that they could not promise that their membership would abide by all pay board rulings.

So in reality, the support promised by labor is only support halfway. It will serve the purpose, however, of giving notice to the President that his expectation that profits will be voluntarily curtailed had better come true.

As Nixon experiences an initial success in preparing for Phase II at home, his record in foreign affairs becomes more impressive. His announcement that he will go to Moscow for a summit meeting with the Soviet leadership next May might be dismissed by his opponents as an election year grandstand play, but the presidential visit has much more behind it than good timing.

Aside from giving the Soviet Union assurances in light of the earlier trip to China, which would appear to be a diplomatic necessity the top-level talks might also result in an easing of tension in the Middle East and a breakthrough in nuclear arms limitation negotiations. The fact that Nixon was invited to come to Moscow during an election year might be a political bonus for the President, but that consideration is secondary.

Relations With Cuba

In this "era of negotiation," as proclaimed by President Nixon, it would seem inappropriate for the United States, as it reaches out for normal relations with mainland China and a greater understanding with the Soviet Union, to disregard the possibility of mending fences closer to home.

The motives of this country would be exposed if the U.S. seeks accommodation with Peking and Moscow and ignored smaller and less powerful states who, as China and the Soviet Union, are ideological opposites.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, who will probably be condemned by the same people who applaud the President's initiatives toward the east, has suggested that the U.S. re-examine its policy regarding Cuba. Declaring that American policies toward the socialist island nation are outdated, the Massachusetts senator said that there are indications Cuba would be willing to begin reducing tensions between the two countries. In the last year, Kennedy said, more and more U.S. newspapermen have been permitted to enter Cuba and he noted that last month an official U.S. amateur volleyball team was allowed to enter the country and compete. The comparison is inescapable.

Three factors have kept relations between the governments of the U.S. and Cuba in the freezer for more than a decade: The use of Cuba, 90 miles off the American mainland, as a forward base for Soviet military designs; the now-dissipating threat of Cuba as the base for fermenting other Latin American revolutionary movements and the strong Free Cuba lobby within the United States.

All these threats, in one form or another, are present in our dealings with other communist nations. The time has come, in this era of negotiations, for a re-evaluation of relations with Cuba.

The Past Record Of West Virginia's Sen. Byrd Shows Him Poorly Fitted For Supreme Court

WASHINGTON — In the closing hours of the 1970 campaign, Richard Nixon climbed onto the roof of his car in San Jose, Calif., and gave back to a hostile crowd of radical youths the peace sign they regard as peculiarly their own. He received the answering roar of boos and catcalls he had hoped to elicit.

Climbing down, he said to an aide, "That's what they hate to see."

There is the same provocative vengeful rub-their-noses-in-it spirit at work in Nixon's prospective nomination of Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia to the Supreme Court.

Byrd has the public record of a racist bigot. He was an organizer for the Ku Klux Klan in the 1940s, and despite his later repudiation of the KKK, the weight of his words and votes shows that he is of the same opinion still. He participated in the southern filibusters against the Civil Rights Laws of 1964 and 1965, holding the floor one night for 14 hours while Strom Thurmond spelled him with helpful questions.

He has repeatedly made long virulent speeches attacking the black poor. One of his favorite lines: "We can take the people out of the slums but we can't take the slums out of the people."

As chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee for the District of Columbia, he has been a relentless overseer of a city more than 70 per cent black. Over and over, he has pressed city officials to be tougher in investigating welfare recipients and in enforcing the man-in-the-house rule that cuts women and children off the welfare rolls if a deserting father can be shown to have visited the home. And if the children go hungry?

"We all get hungry," Byrd once remarked. "But starvation is another thing. I have seen no evidence of starvation in the district." Byrd voted against the confirmation of Thurgood Marshall on the Supreme Court. He voted for the nomination of Harrold Carswell.

There are no public or professional accomplishments to redeem this dismal record. He only graduated from law school in 1963. He has never passed the bar or practiced law. As a member of the Senate, Byrd has sponsored no important bills or been identified with any major causes.

Instead, he has busied himself with the minor chores of Senate housekeeping. He has kept track of unanimous consent agreements, known which senators to notify when an amendment is pending, inserted material in the Congressional Record on behalf of absent colleagues, and patrolled the Senate chamber ordering the senatorial staff assistants off the floor.

By making himself the willing useful servant of other men's minor necessities, Byrd has climbed the legislative ladder first to secretary of the Democratic conference and then to majority whip. Serviceable and soft-spoken, toiling and molling, he is the Uriah Heep of the Senate.

To send Robert Byrd to the Supreme Court is a slap across the face of every black person in America. It demeans the highest court in the land. It humiliates the legal profession whose members in local bar associations across the country bestirred themselves to oppose the Carswell nomination. It rebuffs the claims of the American Bar Association's selection committee, which Otherwise corporations could influence the president's appointments, getting judges to decide in their favor. Remember the judges Nixon tried to get confirmed to the Supreme Court bench? They were southerners who could help him keep the blacks down and yet get their vote.

Nixon is mooching programs from the Democrats, but would ignore them after election (if he is re-elected), so don't be fooled and vote for him, expecting him to carry out his promises (many of which he has made).

The price and wage freeze, it seems to me, nullifies its initial purpose and looks full of holes, but in the end — you guessed it — more millionaires and more poor people will adorn our fair land.

Nixon is advocating, as Eisenhower did, the trickle-down theory, with hopes that a few crumbs will fall to the lower class by subsidizing big business, which must have the first crack at it.

It looks as if Nixon and President Thieu of South Vietnam are using similar campaign tactics.

School Problems

Doniphan, Neb.

This is a reply to "Concerned" of Oct. 11. To put it bluntly, I am concerned about the accusations she has made about the Doniphan schools and particularly about the dismissal of a grade-school teacher. I also have three children in school, my husband and I are graduates of the school, and my husband and I are employed as bus drivers by the school, so I am not completely out of the school situation.

Doniphan has a good school, as the records show, so I will not waste time nor space defending it. I'm sure every school has some discipline problems and they are all handled differently. If "Concerned" were so concerned about the rumors and stories she had heard, why didn't she follow through and get to the bottom of the source and attend a school board meeting and discuss her dissatisfaction with the board instead of airing her gripes with the whole state of Nebraska?

As for the dismissal of a certain teacher, this is another one of her "rumors." This teacher retired — in fact, she didn't renew her certificate because she had reached retirement age and had been ill the previous year. Every teacher who has dedicated her lifetime to the teaching profession is entitled to a peaceful retirement and shouldn't have to defend herself against vicious, untrue stories. In my estimation, this is a clear case of slander.

"Concerned" has every right to be interested in school discipline and the punishments involved. But I think she had better check out her facts before she airs her troubles to the whole world.

There is something delightful about this time of year that speaks for itself. It seems there are many gifts that illuminate the hours. It is a time to sort the brightest apples or listen to the various moods of the wind and there are many I have learned through the years.

The scent of cedar seems to be extra pungent when the sunlight plays upon the boughs and the raindrops crystal clear when they drip from the greens. The sharp notes of the bluejays are intense and the crow echoes raspy calls from the fields as he circles overhead. The night wind grows sharper and more buoyant as it capers across the land... almost vulgar at times as it rudely rattles the doors and windows in an attempt to enter the house.

It is good to go where the wheat is binned and see the loads of milo come from the field... to watch the neighbor bring the golden corn from the irrigated land across the roadway.

Yes, I would say the torch of summer is burning low, flickering in one last attempt to make a big splash of color and light. So I must look quickly now and store the pictures of another vibrant autumn away for safekeeping to dwell upon in some distant future.

I wish I could think of some easy way to scrub and wax the kitchen floor. Oh, I know I see advertisements in magazines of women pictured in their Sunday best gingerly floating a mop over the floor or gracefully waxing an already shining floor, smiling as if they had never been so happy.

Maybe kitchen floors in the country get more smudges and grime than test kitchens that advertisers picture because I never am quite that hilarious about the job. I certainly don't wear make-up to do the work nor a crisp, tea-party dress. I get down on my hands and knees to scrub the floor. Somehow a wet mop has a way of getting moisture on the mop board or I miss a spot.

At any rate, I have always scrubbed floors this way and considered it another form of exercise but as the years go by, I must say it isn't easy as it once was. So perhaps some day I will have to make a change but I know I will never look as beautiful as the girls that grace the pages of the magazines.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

When the 1971 Legislature created eight area technical community college districts, it had a very good idea in mind. What it intended to do was provide a unified administration for all the junior colleges and technical schools in the state and eliminate the development of overlapping and useless duplication.

There is probably a good chance that this will be accomplished but not without a lot more political infighting than most people thought when the legislation was adopted. The Lincoln and Southeast Nebraska area offer an example of some of what might be found in possibly all the other eight districts.

While the districts are established, their boundaries are not set, with the possible exception of Omaha and Lincoln. In our reading of the bill, there is some question as to whether Lincoln and Omaha are intended as units by themselves or as larger operations.

But judging from the activity now going on, one must assume that Lincoln, at least, could stay as it is or could be expanded to include other counties. The assumption is based on the fact that efforts are under way to place all of Lancaster County except Lincoln in what will become the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area.

In this effort, there appears to be a recognition that Lancaster and other counties in the 17-to-20-county region involved could be joined with the Lincoln Technical Community College operation or with the Southeast Nebraska area, the latter undoubtedly to be centered around the State Technical School at Milford.

This introduces what might have been the state's first mistake. Rather than letting local areas decide which region they want to join, the state might well have set the boundaries of the various districts themselves as well as establishing the number of such districts at eight.

This may sound autocratic but the alternative could produce some real inequities. If the vast majority of counties in the Lincoln 17 area, for instance, wanted and voted to join Lincoln, the Milford operation probably could not survive.

If Lancaster and all other Lincoln 17 counties leave Lincoln all by itself, Lincoln could operate but it would be done an injustice and a lot of people would be inconvenienced. We can conceive of situations developing whereby an area might be left with such a small tax base ($300 million is the legal minimum for existence under state law) that the allowable one-mill levy could not support the operation.

If Lincoln is left alone, its assessed valuation tax base, on 1970-71 figures, would be $3.6 million as compared to $8.7 million for the rest of the Southeast Nebraska region. But Lincoln would be serving a student population nearly equal to that of the rest of the entire area.

I certainly don't wear make-up to do the work, nor a crisp, tea-party dress. I get down on my hands and knees to scrub the floor. Somehow a wet mop has a way of getting moisture on the mop board or I miss a spot.

At any rate, I have always scrubbed floors this way and considered it another form of exercise but as the years go by, I must say it isn't easy as it once was. So perhaps some day I will have to make a change but I know I will never look as beautiful as the girls that grace the pages of the magazines.

300 Persons Join Anti-War Protest

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Three-hundred persons, mostly young people, took part in an anti-war demonstration during the noon hour Wednesday on the north steps of the State Capitol.

Sponsored by the Nebraskans For Peace organization, the 45-minute demonstration was held as part of a nationwide moratorium called Wednesday to protest the Indochina War and what the protesters called its harmful effect on domestic American life.

The group laid quietly on the steps for 30 minutes in tribute to the 408 Nebraskans who have died in the war.

Flags Lowered

The Capitol flags were at half-mast for the latest victim, Army Sp 4 Edwin Kudlacek of Valparaiso.

Nick Meinhardt, coordinator for Nebraskans For Peace, read a statement and then asked those present to lie down on the steps.

"The Indochina War was not an accident as the peace movement believed five and ten years ago," Meinhardt said. "It was rather an outgrowth of the very same mentality which runs rampant in this country."

Similarity Cited

"The very same racism, sexism and economic exploitation which have gone on for years in this country are why we are in Indochina — not freedom or democracy or whatever else we have been told," he said.

Meinhardt said the deaths of Americans in Vietnam have "forced this country to look at itself and its whole value system."

"You (the Americans who have died) have told us we must rebuild America, not on deception and propaganda to which we have grown accustomed over the last years, but rather on the right for every person in this country to determine his own destiny."

'Get The Hell Out'

"Let's get the hell out of Indochina," Meinhardt said, "and let's get out of the mentality" which has caused Indochina, Attica, and a Cano,

Ill, and "begin to think what we want this country to be."

Meinhardt said he had "hoped for" at least 500 persons to attend the demonstration, but was not disappointed by the smaller number.

Most of the demonstrators came from the University of Nebraska campus six blocks away, but interspersed in the group were older adults and a number of Vietnam veterans.

The demonstration was observed by the Lincoln Police department, which had four squad cars and one officer taking pictures at the scene.

Police Inspector Robert Sawdon said no trouble had been expected, but noted all demonstrations were "routinely observed by police

Peterson Group Is Formed

The formation of a 16-member group of Lancaster County Citizens for Peterson was announced Wednesday to urge and promote the possible senatorial candidacy of Wallace Peterson.

Peterson, chairman of the University of Nebraska's Department of Economics, has announced that he may seek the 1972 Democratic senatorial nomination.

Mrs. Yvonne Hardesty of Lincoln heads the citizens group.

Other members include Mrs. Dorothy Schwartzkopf, wife of Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf; Rex King, president of the Lincoln Central Labor Union; Mrs. Carol Dyas, coordinator of Mothers for Peace; Steve Fowler, president of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska; and Jerry Petr, Democratic state treasurer.

Others include Jim Geist, Mrs. Frieda Bauer, Mrs. Essie Burden, John Dvorak, Allen Overcash, Rodney Rehm, Wallace Rudolph, Dan Schlitt, James Selk and Neil Sipp.

'Tonight' Host Will Present Ball To Queen

Television star Johnny Carson will present a football autographed by the Cornhusker football team to the 1971 Homecoming Queen Saturday afternoon at the Nebraska-Kansas University game in Memorial Stadium.

He will be accompanied by University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner and Interim Chancellor C. Peter Magrath during the halftime ceremonies. Members of Corn Cobs and Tassels are in charge of the event with a theme of "Have a Happy Husker Homecoming."

Carson, formerly of Norfolk, graduated from NU in 1949 and currently is the star of the "Tonight" show on the National Broadcasting Company. His parents, Mr and Mrs Homer Carson of Columbus, also will attend the game.

The Homecoming Queen will be announced Friday night at the Homecoming Dance featuring Jim Webb and Crow in the Coliseum. The queen will be selected by a student body vote Wednesday.

Members of Corn Cobs and Tassels are planning a pep rally at 6 p.m. Friday on the south side of the Nebraska Union. Those attending will march to Love Library for presentation of the trophy to the living unit which contributes the most money per member to the "Make Love Number One" fund drive.

Corn Cobs and Tassels asked living units to contribute money normally spent to erect homecoming displays to a special fund for Love Library in the University of Nebraska Foundation. The students hope alumni and other interested persons will help in the effort to "Make Love Library Number one."

Dennis Farney To Speak At NU

Wall Street Journal reporter Dennis Farney will speak on "A reporter looks at the Pentagon Papers" Thursday night on the campus of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Farney will speak at 8 p.m. in the Nebraska Union to members of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, PTA, notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

5 U.S. Copters Blown Up Near Saigon

Saigon (UPI) — Communist commandos blew up five helicopters at a U.S. base eight miles northeast of Saigon Wednesday in their closest strike to the South Vietnamese capital since the spring of 1963, U.S. spokesmen said.

The guerrillas crept unmolested into the sprawling Di An Base, scene of a 1969 visit by President Nixon during a one-day trip to Vietnam, and laid at least six satchel charges inside UH1 Huey helicopters parked there, spokesmen said.

As they were leaving an American guard in a sentry post along the lengthy perimeter of the sprawling installation spotted two of them. But before he could fire a shot, five of the satchels went off, destroying two Hueys and doing what was described as "heavy damage" to three others.

The guerrillas escaped in the early morning darkness.

It was the fourth attack on a U.S. helicopter base in South Vietnam in the last three months. American helicopters had been hit previously at Tay Ninh West, northwest of the capital, Lai Khe, due north, and Phu Loi, about five miles northwest of Di An, in the space of a few days last July.

The most serious of the attacks was at Lai Khe July 27, when two AH1 Cobra gunships and two OH6 "Loaches" were destroyed by satchel charges and 13 other helicopters damaged by exploding ammunition.

There had not been a closer ground attack in the Saigon area since the May offensive of 1968, when several bases on the outskirts of the city were hit.

Want a question answered? Action on something? Phone or write ACTION LINE, Sunday Journal and Star, giving name, town, daily paper (Star, Journal or Sunday) plus your request. Calls or letters from unidentified persons are not used. A pen name or initial will be used with the town if requested and if the caller or writer also provides his correct name and address.

Is there an agency in Nebraska state government that policies advertising practices and sales techniques? If not, who can the consumer turn to in this age of high pressure and in some cases, shady deals? Where can the consumer report the unfair business practices encountered? —M.E., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Before consummating a deal, contact the Better Business Bureau or, in some areas, the Chamber of Commerce. If you have a problem later, contact the business bureau as well as ACTION LINE. Or report what you consider unfair practices to the Federal Trade Commission Regional Office, Rm. 2806, 911 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo. 64106.

Nebraska has agencies in state government that police areas like insurance, real estate, liquor, etc., but no specific agency that deals in consumer protection as such. If you feel a specific state consumer protection agency is needed, contact your state senator and discuss a bill proposing an agency.

Good luck and don't take any wooden nickels.

If I register to vote in Nebraska, I can vote for Sen. George McGovern in the presidential primary, but I will be living in California in November, 1972, the election. So: do I vote absentee in Nebraska if I register here? Do I register again for California? Or would it be better to register in my home state — Ohio — and miss the Nebraska primary? Do all these states have primaries? Can I register independent and vote for a Democrat like McGovern? —Student, Lincoln ACTION LINE: Any eligible citizen who has met the residence requirement in Lancaster County — six months in the state and 40 days in the county — may register and vote here, says Lancaster County's newly appointed election commissioner, Bill Davidson.

But, note that when you do register here, several things immediately happen: you must then register your auto in the county and become eligible for all the taxes that are levied by the county. You must also confirm under oath that you intend to make Lancaster County your home, something you can hardly justify since you plan to move to California in 1972.

Voting in the primary should be of no problem to you, all three of the states mentioned have a primary. Since you do not live in California yet, the best bet would perhaps be to register in Ohio and vote there in both the primary and the general election by absentee ballot.

To vote in the primary, you must align yourself with a major political party, Davidson notes, since the primary is merely an intra-party contest for the purpose of giving party members a say in determining just who the candidate will be. In the general election, you can vote for any candidate you choose no matter how you're registered.

For other out-of-state students wondering where to register, here is a list of states that will have primaries and the tentative dates they will be held: New Hampshire, Mar. 14; Illinois, Mar. 21; Wisconsin, April 4; Rhode Island, April 11; Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, April 25; District of Columbia, Indiana and Ohio, May 2; Nebraska and West Virginia, May 9; Maryland, May 16; Oregon, May 23; California, New Jersey, New Mexico and South Dakota, June 6. Another 10 states are looking at the idea of holding primaries so watch the newspaper for developments.

I plan to attend a convention in Atlantic City, N.J. next February and would like to attend the Dick Cavett television show in New York City. How do I get tickets? —J.B., Gibbon

CAVETT . . . with poet Neil Hardt

ACTION LINE: Unlike a regular weekly series, a television show like that of Dick Cavett can't plan that far in advance in terms of the taping schedule. The schedule, according to Mrs. Jean Frank, ticket supervisor, has not been made definite beyond December. It most likely will remain unchanged—taping Tuesday through Friday at 6 p.m. and audience to be seated by 3:15 p.m.

Mrs. Frank took your name and will expect also to hear from you in January. She told ACTION LINE she will reserve seats (if there are four or fewer in your party) right down front and center where television executives and special guests sit. If your group is larger than four, she can get general public seats for you. The tickets will be reserved and either mailed to you or kept at the studio where you can get them the night of the show.

Write to Mrs. Frank, ABC Guest Relations, 38 W. 66th St., New York, N.Y. 10023.

By the way, no one under age 18 is allowed in the studio for the ex-Lincolnite's program.

I would like to know where to send a sample of barbecue sauce to have it broken down into its ingredients. It's made from an old family recipe, a recipe long since lost and we would like to duplicate it. —Chef, Lincoln ACTION LINE: A laboratory, in order to do the work, would need a large amount of the sauce and a large amount of cash, according to authorities from here to Boston, Mass.

Add to that, says a technician at H. J. Heinz Co.'s experimental lab, the fact that there is no known way to determine what spices and flavoring influences are present in a specific combination. Experts can tell the amount of sugar, salt, acids, etc., in the recipe, but could only give a very rough idea of the spices used. And after the considerable expense, the experts concede that they could not tell in what order ingredients were added or how long each was cooked or treated to make that extra special flavor.

According to the Arthur D. Little Co., consultants in the food area in Boston, the best bet is to experiment on your own with combinations of this and that until you get the flavor you want.

Say . . . why not begin your own family recipe and 100 years from now, your family tree will be talking about it.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Widow, 62, Yearns For Independent Life

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question—"I'm a widow, 62, and live across the street from my widowed mother, 87. She's frail and nervous and I have to go over and fix her a hot meal every noon. Two or three nights a week she insists that I sleep at her house. I'd like to have an independent life—do as I please, go on trips, have some beans, and maybe take a job. But I'm an only child and feel compelled to care for her. It seems I won't be able to live for myself until she goes and I feel so trapped. But is there any other course?"

Answer—You should feel free to make other arrangements and live as you wish. There are several possibilities. Hire a companion to live with her, or find her a good nursing home or residence for elders. The personal attention you've been giving your mother is admirable, and she may object to any change. But society no longer expects children to care personally for aging parents. We have an obligation to see that parents are loved and well cared for, but we also have an obligation to pursue personal interests and live our own lives.

Question—"My husband never used to be stingy. But since retiring he'll do anything to save a buck. Our home is paid for and we've got nearly $400 monthly, but he still pinches pennies. Right now he's in the kitchen taking stamps off letters. He watches incoming mail and whenever there's a stamp that hasn't been cancelled he'll spend half an hour steaming it off. He does the shopping and will drive 10 miles to a supermarket that offers fryers two cents cheaper per pound than our local store. He cuts his own hair with a comb and razor blade gadget. And he bawls me out for wearing nylons—says cotton hose would be cheaper and wouldn't run. Why does he act like this?"

Answer—Probably because he has very little else to do. Many retired people make a hobby of saving pennies, whether they need to or not. Nearly everyone—rich or poor—practices inconsequential economies. A recent magazine article says Mrs. Rose Kennedy is a great one for switching off lights to save electricity, and rumor has it that billionaire John Paul Getty won't discard a suit until he's gotten 10 years wear out of it.

Question—"How do you accept the ironies of life? My wife and I have been wed 51 years. She had a stroke last year at 80 and has lain helpless in a nursing home nine months. They say there's no hope and she wants to die. Last month the doctor and minister came to my house and I assumed they were bringing word she had died. Instead they brought the terrible news that our only daughter had been killed in an accident—a wonderful girl, 45—so healthy and full of life with a fine husband and four children. I went to pieces. Doesn't it make you wonder if there's any sense to life at all?"

Answer—You're not alone thinking much of life makes little sense. But taking this view undermines our confidence and erodes human determination to make the best of things. It's healthier to remind ourselves that we're finite beings lacking the capacity to understand the infinite plan of the universe. We must accept dreadful things which happen which we can do absolutely nothing about and assume they have purpose and meaning. Any other attitude will just make us frustrated and miserable. Is there an agency in Nebraska state government that polices advertising practices and sales techniques? If not, who can the consumer turn to in this age of high pressure and in some cases, shady deals? Where can the consumer report the unfair business practices encountered? —M.E., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Before consummating a deal, contact the Better Business Bureau or, in some areas, the Chamber of Commerce. If you have a problem later, contact the business bureau as well as ACTION LINE. Or report what you consider unfair practices to the Federal Trade Commission Regional Office, Rm. 2806, 911 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo. 64106.

Nebraska has agencies in state government that police areas like insurance, real estate, liquor, etc., but no specific agency that deals in consumer protection as such. If you feel a specific state consumer protection agency is needed, contact your state senator and discuss a bill proposing an agency.

Good luck and don't take any wooden nickels.

Laird Fears U.S. May Lose Missile Sub Lead

The New York Times
Washington — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird expressed concern Wednesday over the continuing Soviet buildup of land- and sea-based missiles which he said was already "far outdistancing" the estimates he offered Congress only seven months ago.

While the United States today still enjoys a technological lead in the quality of its strategic weapons, he said, there is no assurance that the "momentum" of the Russian effort may not overtake this advantage.

He stressed the potential political problem if the Russians were in position one day to ring the country with a larger force of missile submarines than is possessed by the U.S.

In a 40-minute Pentagon news conference, Laird disclosed plans for a visit to South Vietnam in early November to provide President Nixon with an 11th-hour appraisal of the military situation prior to the President's next troop withdrawal announcement. Accompanying the secretary will be Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The defense secretary confirmed report that the Soviet Union is expected to match the United States at least by 1973 in deploying 41 Polaris-type missile submarines.

Other sources have recently disclosed that the Russians now have 23 Y-class missile submarines operational, five or six afloat and being fitted out, and 13 to 15 more under construction. Thus by late 1972 or 1973, barring a halt or slowdown in the construction effort, the Russians would catch up with the size of the American Polaris fleet of operational submarines.

2,135 Fighting Fire Win Battle

Summerland, Calif. (UPI) — A tired army of 2,135 fire fighters won a week-long battle Wednesday against the worst California brush fire of the year.

The blaze killed four bulldozer operators, injured 42 fire fighters, two of them seriously, and destroyed seven expensive homes. Fire officials said they believe it was set by an arsonist.

Soviets Agree To Bolster Egypt Forces

By United Press International
The Soviet Union has agreed to further strengthen Egypt's armed forces following an exchange of "opinions about further joint action" in the Middle East by Egyptian and Soviet leaders in Moscow, it was announced Wednesday.

A Radio Moscow broadcast and Tass news agency dispatch summarized highlights of a joint communique issued upon the completion of a three-day visit by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for talks with the Soviet troika: Communist Party Chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin

He Wasn't Out

Rome (AP) — Police said that when two officers went to the home of 33-year-old Italo Permanelli to arrest him, his wife said he was out. They decided to wait, sat down on a couch and discovered the wanted man hiding between the springs and the cushion.

and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.
The Russian pledge of expanded military assistance to Egypt was coupled with a condemnation of "anti-communism and anti-Sovietism" in the Arab world.

Lid On Cambodian Aid Backed

Washington (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Wednesday to put a $250 million limit on U.S. military aid to Cambodia and coupled it with a declaration that American aid should not be construed as a defense commitment.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., reported the committee had decided also to freeze at 200 the total number of U.S. military personnel allowed in Cambodia.

Case originally wanted to limit spending to $200 million and to freeze manpower at the current level of 150.

He described the compromise as a "holding action" until Congress can complete a full examination of U.S. policy toward Cambodia.

Case expressed belief the Senate will act favorably on the proposed ceiling especially, he said, in light of its recent action limiting U.S. spending in Laos.

The committee tied to the case amendment a proposal by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., to include in any spending ceiling the policy declaration that in no event shall the continuance of U.S. military and economic aid be interpreted as a commitment to involve large-scale American efforts in defense of the country.

Case objected strenuously to reported Pentagon plans to double military aid to Cambodia over the next five years.

"These recommendations would entirely destroy Cambodia's economy and turn that country into an armed camp, altogether dependent on U.S. dollars, arms and food for its continued existence," Case said.

Army Planning To Remove Slot Machines Overseas

Washington (AP) — Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke announced Wednesday night that all slot machines will be removed from every Army post and base around the world next July. He called slot machines a "corruptive influence."

"It is my intention that these machines will no longer tap soldiers' pockets," the new secretary of the Army said.

He disclosed the action in a speech, prepared for the Army Association Annual dinner, in which he outlined reforms he is undertaking.

Paper Tells Of Nixon Stock Deal

New York (AP) — Newsday said Wednesday that when Richard M. Nixon became president, he sold back 185,891 shares in Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo's land firm for $2 a share, while the company was selling to others at $1 a share.

The White House said there would be no direct comment on the Newsday article, but Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary, added: "The President's financial holdings were made public and are a matter of public record."

The Long Island newspaper also said that when Nixon was elected, his real estate holdings, listed by the White House as worth $365,000, included two lots at Cape Florida which the newspaper said he got at "cut rates" after posing for a picture with developer, Donald Berg, whom he met through Rebozo.

The disclosures were in the concluding article in a series the paper has been running on the President's Florida real estate ventures and his business relationship with Rebozo, his long-time friend.

Newsday said Rebozo was president and treasurer of Fischer's Island Inc., which owned 90% of an island in Miami's Biscayne Bay, and that former Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., was a stockholder in the firm in which Nixon held the large block of stock.

Nixon acquired the holdings with the help of Rebozo and Smathers. Newsday said, and they were "the bulk of his declared personal assets" when he took office.

Nixon also owned two houses in what is now the presidential compound at Key Biscayne, where the government now leases two other houses and where Rebozo also owns a house. Newsday said, adding that one of the two owned by Nixon was purchased from Smathers.

Newsday said it tried, but failed to get an interview with Nixon while preparing the articles and that questions submitted to the White House about the Florida business dealings were not answered.

Judge Rules 'Chipos' Are Potato Chips

Federal District Judge Warren Urbom ruled Wednesday that potato chips manufactured from dried or dehydrated potatoes may properly be advertised as "potato chips" so long as the advertising makes clear their dried potato origin.

Judge Urbom rejected a contention that the potato chip description should be applied only to thin slices of raw potato cooked crisp in deep fat.

The U.S. District Court judgment was handed down in a two-year-old injunction brought by Potato Chip Institute, a non-profit corporation of potato chip manufacturers, and Weaver Potato Chip Co. of Lincoln against General Mills Inc.

Judge Urbom's ruling followed a week-long trial in which the plaintiffs sought to prevent General Mills from applying the "potato chip" label to its product sold as "Chipos," a chip made from potato granules which are moistened, rolled out, cut into pieces and fried.

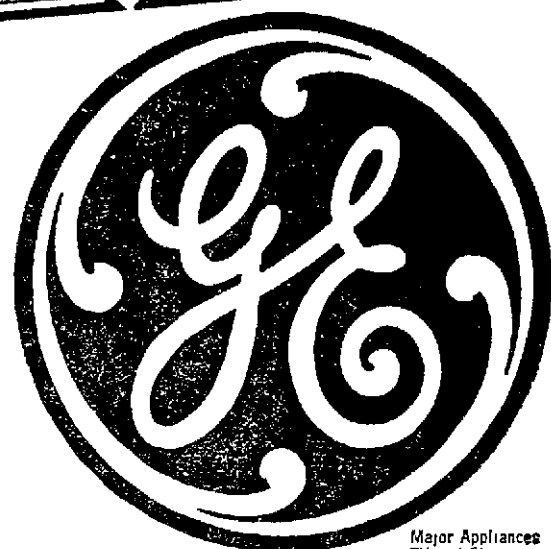

Judge Urbom found acceptable the "Chipos" packages, in use since October, 1969, which describe "Chipos" as "new fashioned potato chips, fashioned from dried potato granules, flash fried." However, the court enjoined General Mills from advertising and promoting the sale of "Chipos" through television commercials known as "bags" or "newspaper sacks" or any other advertising which lacks a prominent declaration that "Chipos" are made from dried or dehydrated potatoes.

The court finding followed the lines of a 1969 policy guideline issued by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

New Housing Unit To Coordinate State Plans

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer
Gov. J. James Exon
Wednesday announced the formation of the State Housing

Advisory Council which will have the job of coordinating all housing plans of state agencies.
The council will be chaired by a representative of the Department of Economic Development and will also include members from the Welfare Department, the Nebraska Commission on Aging, the Health Department, the Fire Marshal's office, the Office of Planning and Programming and the Technical Assistance Agency.

The creation of the Housing Council was a recommendation made in part two of the State Housing Study prepared by Don Siewers of the Economic Development Department. Part one of the study was released in November of 1970 under former Gov. Norbert Tiemann.
The report's purpose is to pinpoint the state's housing conditions and to make recommendations.

Although during the decade of the sixties the number of Nebraska households rose 9.3% while population increased 5.1%, the report says the 90,370 new homes which were needed were matched by only 40,270.
This compares, the report goes on, to an 18.6% housing increase and a 6.5% population increase during the fifties.

The report also cites a need for more low-income housing.
It says 64% of Nebraska's 5,418 public housing units are occupied by elderly.

"This can primarily be contributed," the report says, "to the attitude that elderly have priority claim on federally assisted funds. However, another major contribution to the imbalance is the anticipated increased cost of management of low-income family units."

The 46-page report also estimated 61% of the state's housing was at least 40 years old.

In order to correct the situation, the study suggests the state through the Housing Advisory Council "transcend" local governments.

"State government has the ability to transcend local government boundaries and thereby the resources to increase the production of housing units more than any other level of governmental service," it said.

Other recommendations the report made include a statewide information bank on housing, uniform housing codes, analysis and updating of existing legislation and increased participation in Operation Breakthrough for low-income families.

Eagleton To Address Demos

Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri will be the featured speaker at the Lancaster County Democratic candidates day dinner in Lincoln Thursday night.

Eagleton, 42, now serving his first term in the Senate, will replace Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana as the dinner speaker. County Chairman Charles Pallesen Jr. announced Wednesday.

Bayh bowed out of the appearance Tuesday when he announced his withdrawal as a presidential aspirant in order to be at the side of his wife, who is ill with cancer.

Eagleton is a former attorney general and lieutenant governor of Missouri. He was elected to the Senate in 1968.

The young freshman senator was featured speaker at the annual Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Lincoln in 1969.

Gov. J. James Exon will also address the 250 to 300 persons expected to attend the $10-a-plate dinner at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel.

Democratic senatorial candidates and potential candidates are expected to attend the affair.

Among those who have indicated they will be on hand are State Sen. Terry Carpenter, Donald Ferguson, Wallace Peterson, Bert Evans, Donald Searcy and Phyllis Person Lyons.

Tesar To Discuss Possible Divorce-Welfare Connection

The legislative study committee on welfare Wednesday decided to invite District Judge Rudolph Tesar of Omaha to appear before it to discuss his views on the connection between divorce laws and welfare problems.

At the request of Tesar, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha sponsored a resolution in the 1971 legislative session urging a study of the matter.

"He feels there's a connection between divorces and welfare that needs investigation," Proud told the committee.

Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, committee chairman, requested Proud to arrange with Tesar for a hearing on the question.

Proud's resolution suggested that 'statutes governing marriage and divorce may contribute to increased reliance on welfare by divorced persons.'

The committee Wednesday received statistical information on welfare administration in Nebraska on a county-by-county basis.

Legislation may be needed to give the counties more permissive authority to "work together as a group" on welfare administrative problems, Mrs. Orme said.

Mrs. Orme said she would like to see the counties assume more of the costs of administration now borne by the state.

Sen. Elmer Wallway of Emerson requested a staff report on the salaries of county welfare directors, caseworkers and clerical personnel.

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln suggested a statistical review of the number of families who are receiving welfare payments and unemployment compensation at the same time.

The State Justice Department asked the State Supreme Court Wednesday to uphold the conviction of an Omaha man for burglary.

The brief filed with the high court said the issue in the appeal of Lugeon R. Morgan is whether Morgan or a police officer told the truth during the trial in Douglas County District Court.

The police officer said he found Morgan hiding in some weeds, the brief said, after the burglary was interrupted.

Morgan, in his brief, said the conviction centered on only circumstantial evidence.

Escaped convict Robert E. Fritz turned himself in Tuesday to the sheriff's office in Clarksville, Tenn., a Nebraska Penal Complex spokesman reported Wednesday.

Fritz, 32, escaped from the prison's cemetery area while on a grass mowing detail last Thursday. He entered the prison last March to serve a five-year term for robbery in Lancaster county.

We've been eating out these brisk October evenings. Giving the green enchiladas a vote of confidence at Al Williams Mexican room in the Fairmont. Chopstick sashimi at Yamato's. Doing the black tie gig at elegant Le Club on Nob Hill.

We are preparing for the tables of France next week.

Been doing a magazine piece on eating around the world. Find I seem to remember more about how people eat than what fodder they're chomping.

The French are the most serious eaters. None of this three-martini lunch thing. The French restaurant puts a big chunk of French bread on each napkin. The French diner immediately pulls this apart and stuffs it in.

He then goes on for seven courses, mopping each plate with more bread. There are no doggie bags at French restaurants. Poor doggies.

London lunching is usually done at somebody's club. No smoking in the dining room, please.

The English like a jolt or two of whisky before lunch, and the bar is lively.

Spanish lunch begins at 12:30 and goes on until three. At this point you go home and fall into bed. Dinner doesn't begin until 11 at night.

If you show up at nine, they think you're an extra waiter.

Italy and Switzerland eat more to the American taste and hours.

German lunch is heavy and full of potatoes.

The Scandinavians soak you in aquavit. They start eating immediately, but they don't stop drinking. A shot of aquavit goes between each bit.

It is served ice-cold — the bottle frozen in a block of ice. When this hits your stomach, it unfreezes. You get up after lunch. And you fall right down.

Arab countries don't drink. They give you sweet Turkish coffee or mint tea. (They may offer you hashish on the side, though.)

In Moscow it's a question whether you can eat. Whether the waiter will serve you. Figure you may wait an hour before he gets around to you.

Waiters work for the state — like Civil Service. They will not get a raise. They will not get a tip. They will not be fired.

Thus they are gloriously independent. If the waiter has four tables, he may spend all his time at one. Just because he likes those people. After awhile he gets around to you.

In Tokyo, your host smothers you in Johnny Walker Black Label which has great status. Probably because it costs $16 for a fifth.

Also he is on a whacking big expense account. The Japanese get low salaries and large expense accounts. This evens it out. And the Japanese is delighted to take you lunching and night clubbing.

Well, turning the crank on memory. I could remember very little of what we actually ate.

I could remember waiters. A French waiter who brought me Camembert cheese. He ripped me off because the cheese was not ripe.

"Because it is all being exported to America."

A Russian waiter read me off as "not cultured." I'd asked for plain (not bottled) water with the vodka.

And a New York waiter sneered at me for tipping him 15%. "The custom now is 20%."

So off to la belle France for another go. The heartburn reporter at the table. A pocketful of Tums.

Foundation Elects Seward; Changes In Bylaws Okayed

Bankers Life Insurance Co. president Harry Seward Wednesday was elected president of the Lincoln Foundation at the annual meeting.

Seward succeeds attorney Robert Guenzel.

The foundation also approved a number of changes in its articles of incorporation and bylaws to shift major responsibility from the president to the executive director, a recently created full-time position.

Among the changes were ones creating staggered terms for members of the board of directors and providing that no director may succeed himself.

The post of executive director, now held by John Frey, was established as a corporate office.

The number of foundation directors was increased from 21 to 24, and another change provides that no president may succeed himself more than twice.

In the past, the president and board members could serve indefinitely.

Frey said limitation of terms is understood to be one of the concerns of the Internal Revenue Service which, with the Treasury Department, is drafting a set of rules and regulations to apply to community foundations around the country.

The foundation had been waiting for publication of those regulations before reorganizing this year, but decided to go ahead with some changes.

Further changes may be made when the regulations are finally published, Frey said.

In Wednesday's action, the foundation also set the second Wednesday in October, rather than the second Wednesday in April, as the date for the annual meeting.

Frey also said that Arthur Weaver has agreed to develop a program for securing funds for the foundation through special bequests and wills.

Weaver was also named to the executive committee, which will be headed by Seward. Other members of the committee will include Harry Simon and William Aitken, who were re-elected vice presidents; Frey, who was named secretary succeeding Thomas Pansing, and John Wells, who was elected treasurer succeeding C. Wheaton Battley.

Carryover members of the committee include Alfred DeTeau, Robert Hinds, Fred Wells and Guenzel, along with Battley.

New members of the board of directors include Louis B. Finkelstein and John T. McGreer, whose terms expire at the end of 1974, and Robert A. Dobson, Mrs. Dorothy Holyoke, John E. Olsson and Frey for terms expiring in 1975.

Twenty-two persons were added to the 149 others who serve as "at-large" members of the foundation, and as such elect new board members.

The new at-large members are:

Roger L. Anderson, Glenn E. Bonacker, Jack D. Campbell, Irwin Dubinsky, Joseph R. Ferrera, John Fibiger, Avery, Dean, Donald and Ted Forke, Mrs. Evelyn Gold, Hiram D. Hilton, Oliver T. Joy, James E. LeRossignol, Gates Minnick, Donald H. Pegler Jr., Stanley H. Sands, William F. Swanson, Neal E. Tyner, Maynard A. Wood, Erwin D. Zeman and Frey.

Construction To Close 70th St. And South St.

Beginning Thursday through 5 p.m. Friday, 70th St. from South to Monterey will be closed for storm sewer repair, according to the traffic engineer's office.

The office also reported that from Oct. 18 to Dec. 1, South St. will be closed from 62nd to 70th for repair and widening.

Leaflet Distributor Asks Charge Be Dismissed

A defense motion for dismissal of a disorderly conduct charge against Ronald Kurtenbach, 29, of 2541 N. was taken under advisement Wednesday by Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum.

Kurtenbach was charged with disorderly conduct on Sept. 2 in connection with distribution of anti-draft leaflets on the State Fairgrounds.

"The question," Defense Atty. Dennis Burchard of Lincoln, told the court, "is whether the state can prohibit free speech — distribution of the leaflets — by calling it something else."

Last month, Burchard won a temporary injunction in U.S. District Court which restrained the State Fair Board from interfering with Kurtenbach's distribution of leaflets on the final day of the fair.

The defense motion for dismissal came at the conclusion of the state's case before Judge Slocum, who took the matter under advisement until Dec. 8, pending admission of briefs on federal case authority and state law by Burchard and Deputy County Atty. Robert Gibson.

During Wednesday's trial, Deputy Sheriff Bill Griener testified Kurtenbach was first taken to the office of State Fair Manager Henry Brandt, where he was told distribution of leaflets without a permit was contrary to board policy.

Brandt told Kurtenbach pamphlets could only be distributed from concession booths, and none were available for rental, according to Griener.

After leaving Brandt's office, Griener said, Kurtenbach continued to distribute leaflets and was then brought to the sheriff's temporary office on the fairgrounds.

After consultation with the county attorney's office, Chief Deputy Sheriff Del Ziemann testified, an attempt was made to escort Kurtenbach from the fairgrounds, but that Kurtenbach resisted until he was told he was under arrest.

Ziemann testified that Kurtenbach kept insisting on his constitutional rights, "sometimes by yelling," but otherwise did not make any particular disturbance.

Burchard told the court that the state failed to show any disorderly conduct or disturbance in the distribution of the leaflets by Kurtenbach.

If there was any disturbance, the attorney contended, it was caused by the law enforcement officers when they attempted to abridge Kurtenbach's constitutional rights and eject him from the fairgrounds without arrest.

Jets Collide

The Hague (UPI) — Two Dutch air force jets collided in the air but both pilots survived, the air force reported.

McGovern, HHH Urge Free Meals At School

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern proposed Wednesday that each of the nearly 25 million grammar and high school students in America get at least one free meal each day they attend classes.

Neither offered any estimate of the total cost of the plan, but they agreed the federal government should pay 80% of the cost of each meal.

Testifying before McGovern's Senate Select Committee on Hunger, Humphrey said the present program of providing free lunches only for the poorest children had created "economic segregation by separating school children into those who pay and those who do not."

"It is an unnatural distinction which the public and private schools have dropped when it arose in relation to books, transportation, physical education, health and other common services."

McGovern's committee is holding its first hearings on a bill Humphrey introduced Sept.

28 Under it, every child in a day care center, grammar or high school would receive a free meal if he chose to eat it.

Humphrey said this would eliminate the "economic caste system which is being built into the present program."

McGovern endorsed Humphrey's plan and noted that the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health recommended in 1969 that a free lunch be made available to all children regardless of their parents' income.

"Only then," McGovern said, "would the lunch program be viewed as an integral part of and prerequisite to the educational process rather than as a welfare burden on the states and local school districts."

New Library Branches Get Added Gifts

At a joint session Wednesday of the Lincoln City Library Board and Foundation, numerous gifts primarily for use at the two new branch libraries were revealed.

Jack Campbell of the Foundation announced that Mrs. Victor Anderson and son, Roger Anderson, had given a cash gift of $6,000 to be used for additional needed items in the Anderson Branch in northeast Lincoln as well as to partially complete the library's part for matching funds for an audio-visual grant.

The Seacrest Foundation donated $12,000 to be used as a combination gift for the Gere Branch Library and the Lincoln Community Playhouse for lighting and landscaping the property of the adjacent new structure at 56th and Normal.

According to Campbell another cash gift was presented from Gertrude Seacrest to "probably be used" in the Gere Branch.

Other gifts included: Two new flagpoles for the new branches at a cost of about $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Martin, and the flags from American Legion Post 3.

The group also recognized the gift of land to the City of Lincoln from J. Phillip Mahoney, which was made available to the library for the site of the Victor E. Anderson branch at Touzalin and Fremont.

Plans were also discussed for the open house ceremonies from 2 to 5 p.m. at the two new branches — at Charles Gere Oct. 17 and at Victor E. Anderson branch Oct. 24.

According to Library Director Charles Dalrymple, both branches are now giving service, with the University Place branch being closed and Havelock branch scheduled to close Thursday.

Poll: Consumer Confidence Up

By LOUIS HARRIS

After six weeks of the Nixon administration's new economic policies, there are definite signs that the confidence of the American consumer is on the rise. By a substantial 53% to 23%, a majority of the American people now feel that "the Nixon economic policies are doing more good than harm."

There is also evidence that public apprehensions over unemployment are continuing to ease. Repeatedly and most recently between Sept. 20 and 25 among a sample of 1,638 households, the Harris Survey has asked cross sections of the public this question about unemployment: "Compared to a year ago, do you feel the number of unemployed people around here has increased, decreased, or has stayed about the same?"

For the first time in 1971, the number who feel that unemployment is increasing over a year ago has slipped below the majority mark. In fact, the latest count of 47% is a full 23 percentage points below the high of 70% recorded last July, when confidence in Nixon economic policies had hit an all-time low.

The feeling that unemploy-

Louis Harris
Definite Signs

ment is easing is evident in the responses to another key question which the Harris Survey has asked repeatedly over the past year: "Have you or has anyone in your immediate family been laid off from work, lost overtime, or had your work-week cut back, or hasn't any of these things happened to you or to anyone in your family?"

The level of reported lay-offs has now dropped off a full 10 points, from 23% in March of this year to 13% in late September. The proportion of households reporting no change for the worse in work status is now approximately where it was in 1970.

The felt change in consumer price trends is less dramatic than in the unemployment area, but still the trend is definitely toward the view that inflationary pressures are diminishing. Repeatedly, the public has been asked: "Do you feel the prices of most things you buy are rising more rapidly than a year ago, about as rapidly as they were then, less they going down?"

PERCEIVED TREND OF CONSUMER PRICES
	Up	As	Down	Not
	Faster	Before	Now	Sure
	%	%	%	%
Late September, 1971	64	28	6	2
August	69	25	4	1
July	70	24	5	1
May	72	20	4	1
March	73	22	4	1
January	65	28	5	1

Clearly, the impact of inflation is still widely felt across the country, with 64% still holding to the view that the prices they pay are rising more rapidly than they were a year ago. However, the proportion who see consumer prices still rising more rapidly has now fallen off nine points since March and appears to be heading downward with each passing month.

Perhaps as important as the reported experience of consumers is the sense of confidence they have about the trend of the economy. As reported last Monday, by 46% to 29%, the public now believes the new Nixon policies "will keep inflation in check." There is a sense now that federal action is being taken which will control rising prices.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

Dr. Reuben Greenspan, a former professor at New York (City) University, has a remarkably accurate record of predicting earthquakes by utilizing the positions of the planets, sun and moon. Dr. Greenspan, now residing in Laguna Beach, Calif., has pinpointed Jan. 4, 1973, at 9 a.m. (PST) as the time when a devastating quake will rock San Francisco. Dr. Greenspan feels the 1973 quake will probably measure around 7.4 on the Richter scale.

Perhaps the best measure of confidence that the economy is turning around and economic prospects are improving, emerged from this question: "Do you feel the economic policies of the Nixon Administration are doing more good than harm or more harm than good?"

CONFIDENCE IN NIXON ECONOMIC POLICIES
	More	More	Not
	Good	Than	Good
	%	%	%	%
Late September	53	23	24
August	47	29	24
July	46	27	27
March	35	36	29
January	35	36	29

Overall, confidence in the economic policies of Nixon have sharply turned around since his dramatic announcement of Aug. 14. Now a majority can see more good than harm in those policies.

If restoration of consumer confidence is an important element in the recovery of the American economy, then it can be definitely reported that for the first time this year, solid gains in confidence are now being registered.

Tennessee River Record Is Set

Knoxville—Barge freight on the Tennessee River exceeded 25.3 million tons last year, setting a new record for the ninth year in a row, the Tennessee Valley Authority reported.

The tonnage was nearly 12 times as much freight as the river carried in 1945 when it was completely opened to traffic.

Oil Sea Trade Began In 1861

Philadelphia — The modern seaborne oil trade began in 1861 when a ship laden with barrels of oil sailed from Philadelphia with a shanghai crew. Seamen had shunned the ship, fearing that the cargo was too dangerous, but the 224-ton brig delivered its oil to London safely.

Four Engineering Students Winners Of $500 Stipends

Four students in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been awarded $500 scholarships by the firm of Black and Veatch, Kansas City consulting engineers.

Recipients are: Joseph P. Nespor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester J. Nespor of Fairbury, is a senior in civil engineering. James F. Maltz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Maltz of Laurel, is a senior in mechanical engineering. Gerard J. Alex, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Alex of Omaha, is a junior in electrical engineering. Kerry B. Erlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dermot J. Erlington of Lincoln, is a sophomore in civil engineering.

Health

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

The only source of life-saving blood is the human body. No substitute for blood has ever been developed... and as long as blood cannot be manufactured, other people's lives depend upon individuals like you who are willing to donate this life-giving substance.

The need for blood increases daily. Unless more people become donors — which requires less than an hour of your time — the supply will not keep pace with the growing demand. Blood donors are special people and the balance between supply, demand, and human life depends upon them. To assure that blood will be there when you or a loved one need it, give blood now and encourage others to become voluntary donors.

Your physician, hospital or local blood bank can give you more information and answer any questions you may have.

Lincoln To Host Rural Development Workshop

Lincoln will host the U.S. Department of Agriculture's first "national workshop on rural development" next week as a part of an effort by the USDA to help post-secondary schools "find their role" in meeting problems of rural America and to generate a discussion of rural issues.

The workshop, sponsored jointly by the USDA, the American Association of Junior Colleges and the American Vocational Association, runs Monday through Wednesday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Some 150 to 200 participants from across the country are expected to attend. They will include representatives of community and vocational colleges, universities, extension services and citizens from various occupations in the rural areas.

A spokesman for the Nebraska Center said the workshop has been planned in the USDA's office of rural development, and he said the USDA hopes it will lead to a number of regional workshops throughout the nation, bringing together educators and rural citizens.

The conference begins Monday evening with a talk on

"why rural development" by Thomas K. Cowden, assistant USDA secretary for rural development and conservation.

Other speeches include an "overview of the rural situation" by Henry L. Ahlgren, deputy under-secretary for rural development, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday and a talk on the "heart of America" at 6 p.m. Tuesday by Sen. Carl T. Curtis.

James H. Boren, billed as the president of the "national Association of Professional Bureaucrats," will give an "orbital dialogue on dynamic inactivism" at noon Tuesday.

Panel discussions on population trends, transportation and communications, rural housing and public service, education and manpower training, health and culture, and the role of governments in rural planning are set for Tuesday morning and afternoon.

The workshop adjourns at 11 a.m. Wednesday after a summary by John Bottom, assistant administrator of the USDA's Extension Service.

TV SHOW ABOUT NEWSPAPERS READIED

The Lincoln Star and the Lincoln Evening Journal were used as pilot newspapers in a KETV Channel 7 film for National Newspaper Week, currently in progress. The half hour film will be shown at 6:30 p.m. Thursday on Channel 7. Working on the film above are, seated from left, Wil-ham O. Dobler, editor of The Star, Lee Terry, Ron Dullning and John Ritner, all of KETV's news department. Standing in back is Adam Llewellyn, general manager for The Journal-Star Printing Co. (Star Photo.)

Ferguson Says Demos Must Tab 'Winner'

Democratic senatorial candidate Donald Ferguson Wednesday said Democrats next year "must select a candidate who can win not just in May, but in November."

All too often, Ferguson told a luncheon meeting of Lancaster County Democrats, "this party has concerned itself with only the primary."

But "the political reality" next year is that at least 10% of the Republican vote is needed to help the Democratic nominee unseat Sen. Carl Curtis, Ferguson said.

"Party people are going to have to weigh all primary candidates with that as one of the major criteria unless they want their efforts wasted in 1972," he said.

Ferguson said "the leadership crisis" is one of the vital issues in next year's election.

Curtis, he said, is "a habitual follower."

Ferguson said he will hold his first "listening post" meeting in North Bend early next month to discuss Nebraska agricultural and agri-business problems with residents of the area.

"I pledged when announcing as a candidate that I would listen to Nebraskans in this campaign and after being elected," he said.

Ferguson expressed disappointment at the apparent lack

Committee Will Meet

The Advisory Committee to the Departments of Public Institutions and Welfare will meet Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the Institution Dept. conference room.

of agricultural representation on the wage and price boards in President Nixon's Phase II economic plan.

"This appears typical of how agriculture ranks in the priorities of this administration," he said. "And we have not heard Nebraska's senators express much concern."

Ferguson said the U.S. Department of Agriculture should be moved out of Washington into "the heartland of rural America" where it can best serve the citizens.

Union College Recital Slated

Miss Najla Abujauda, a soprano soloist from Lebanon, will be performing in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Engel Recital Room at Union College.

Miss Abujauda, who is jointly sponsored by the Lebanese government and the American embassy, will give a concert of Lebanese art songs. The songs are works by Lebanese poets which have been set to music.

The Union College public relations office said she has been called "the pioneer of Lebanese opera for the work she has done with Lebanese national songs."

She has been a student at the National Conservatory in Beirut and Newbold College in England. In the past she has performed in Spain, Beirut, England and northern Ireland.

Miss Abujauda will be accompanied by Ryan Wells, a Union College music education major.

Patrol Reveals Two Promotions

Col. James E. Kruger, State Patrol superintendent, announced Wednesday the promotions of two men, to be effective Nov. 1.

C. L. Zurcher, Norfolk, was promoted from corporal to sergeant; and D. E. Ruppert, Oakland, was promoted from trooper to corporal.

Kruger said the promotions resulted from a recent retirement.

The workshop, sponsored jointly by the USDA, the American Association of Junior Colleges and the American Vocational Association, runs Monday through Wednesday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Some 150 to 200 participants from across the country are expected to attend. They will include representatives of community and vocational colleges, universities, extension services and citizens from various occupations in the rural areas.

A spokesman for the Nebraska Center said the workshop has been planned in the USDA's office of rural development, and he said the USDA hopes it will lead to a number of regional workshops throughout the nation, bringing together educators and rural citizens.

The conference begins Monday evening with a talk on

"why rural development" by Thomas K. Cowden, assistant USDA secretary for rural development and conservation.

Other speeches include an "overview of the rural situation" by Henry L. Ahlgren, deputy under-secretary for rural development, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, and a talk on the "heart of America" at 6 p.m. Tuesday by Sen. Carl T. Curtis.

James H. Boren, billed as the president of the "national Association of Professional Bureaucrats," will give an "orbital dialogue on dynamic inactivism" at noon Tuesday.

Panel discussions on population trends, transportation and communications, rural housing and public service, education and manpower training, health and culture, and the role of governments in rural planning are set for Tuesday morning and afternoon.

The workshop adjourns at 11 a.m. Wednesday after a summary by John Bottum, assistant administrator of the USDA's Extension Service.

TV SHOW ABOUT NEWSPAPERS READIED

The Lincoln Star and the Lincoln Evening Journal were used as pilot newspapers in a KETV Channel 7 film for National Newspaper Week, currently in progress. The half hour film will be shown at 6:30 p.m. Thursday on Channel 7. Working on the film above are, seated from left, William O. Dobler, editor of The Star; Lee Terry, Ron Dullning and John Rither, all of KETV's news department. Standing in back is Adam Llewellyn, general manager for The Journal-Star Printing Co. (Star Photo.)

Ferguson Says Demos Must Tab 'Winner'

Democratic senatorial candidate Donald Ferguson Wednesday said Democrats next year "must select a candidate who can win not just in May, but in November."

All too often, Ferguson told a luncheon meeting of Lancaster County Democrats, "this party has concerned itself with only the primary."

But "the political reality" next year is that at least 10% of the Republican vote is needed to help the Democratic nominee unseat Sen. Carl Curtis, Ferguson said.

"Party people are going to have to weigh all primary candidates with that as one of the major criteria unless they want their efforts wasted in 1972," he said.

Ferguson said "the leadership crisis" is one of the vital issues in next year's election.

Curtis, he said, is "a habitual follower."

Ferguson said he will hold his first "listening post" meeting in North Bend early next month to discuss Nebraska agricultural and agri-business problems with residents of the area.

"I pledged when announcing as a candidate that I would listen to Nebraskans in this campaign and after being elected," he said.

Ferguson expressed disappointment at the apparent lack of agricultural representation on the wage and price boards in President Nixon's Phase II economic plan.

"This appears typical of how agriculture ranks in the priorities of this administration," he said. "And we have not heard Nebraska's senators express much concern."

Ferguson said the U.S. Department of Agriculture should be moved out of Washington into "the heartland of rural America" where it can best serve the citizens.

Union College Recital Slated

Miss Najla Abujauda, a soprano soloist from Lebanon, will be performing in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Engel Recital Room at Union College.

Miss Abujauda, who is jointly sponsored by the Lebanese government and the American embassy, will give a concert of Lebanese art songs. The songs are works by Lebanese poets which have been set to music.

The Union College public relations office said she has been called "the pioneer of Lebanese opera for the work she has done with Lebanese national songs."

She has been a student at the National Conservatory in Beirut and Newbold College in England. In the past she has performed in Spain, Beirut, England and northern Ireland.

Miss Abujauda will be accompanied by Ryan Wells, a Union College music education major.

Patrol Reveals Two Promotions

Col. James E. Kruger, State Patrol superintendent, announced Wednesday the promotions of two men, to be effective Nov. 1.

C. L. Zurcher, Norfolk, was promoted from corporal to sergeant; and D. E. Ruppert, Oakland, was promoted from trooper to corporal.

Good Service Stressed As City Bus Line Goal

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Providing good bus service to the entire public was re-emphasized Wednesday as the goal of the Lincoln Transportation System by the members of the City Transportation Advisory Committee at its last meeting.

The duties of the committee will be assumed by members of the newly-created City Transportation System board who will be appointed within the next week or 10 days.

Committee members noted that in order to increase the number of bus passengers, the immediate goal must be to give good service and provide that service on schedule.

After ways of making money and increasing income to offset the deficit were mentioned by Bus Manager Jerald Rae, Committee Chairman John Alden stated that "we are defeating our purpose" whenever "making a quick dime" becomes a chief concern.

"The point of the operation is to provide service," he said. It was agreed that Rae should begin discussions with Lincoln Public Schools Superintendent John Prash about possibilities of serving the schools system and determining how the buses might meet these needs.

City Councilman Merle Hale suggested that the needs of the handicapped should also be met since tax money is being used for the buses.

Upon the suggestion of Rae, the committee voted to utilize service of one mini-bus in the morning and one for an hour and one-half in the afternoon for transporting retarded children to school at 70th and Vine.

Rae said that these people had discussed with him the possibility of utilizing buses since they are now having to use two cabs which is quite costly.

The group will be willing to pay $22.50 per day for this service, Rae said, noting that it would only leave one mini-bus out of service for about 15 minutes after mini-bus service begins downtown and would take one off for about an hour and a half in the afternoon which would fall during slow traffic on the mini-buses.

Some members of the committee indicated concern over cutting down the mini-bus service in the afternoon hours regardless of how slow traffic is, but Rae indicated that the other three buses could probably complete their runs more quickly during that period so that there would be no disservice to the mini-bus passengers downtown.

Committee member Jan

Gauger suggested that the committee discuss with the Lincoln Center Development Association (L.C.D.A.) the possibility of inaugurating a "shop and ride" promotion similar to the "park and shop" supported by downtown businesses.

She said she felt that this could be implemented during the hours when the buses run empty.

MISS BRENDA UECKER

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Uecker of Lincoln, formerly of Norfolk, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Brenda, to Rodney Wilke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wilke of Ravenna.

A January wedding is planned. Miss Uecker is a graduate of Bryan Memorial Hospital School of Nursing and now is a member of the RN staff at the hospital.

Mr. Wilke is a senior at the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity.

Around Town

The town will be filled with familiar names and faces from here, there and everywhere during the weekend. Everyone knows that. But what everyone doesn't know is that Lincoln will be seeing a familiar face the weekend of Dec. 11—if you have your eyes on ABC's movie of the week—But we'll tell you about it in a moment.

Right now we want to talk about some weekend guests who are arriving in time for Saturday's game—The visitors will be Mr. and Mrs. Roland W. Finley of San Mateo, Calif., who are expected on Friday and who are to be the house guests of Mrs. Finley's aunt, Mrs. George G. Swingle.

On Friday evening Mrs. Swingle will entertain her guests at dinner at the Nebraska Club, and on Saturday Mrs. Swingle and Mr. and Mrs. Finley will attend the pre-game luncheon at the Lincoln Country Club where, we are sure they will be greeted by many old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley (Patricia Parrish), you see, are graduates of the University of Nebraska where Mrs. Finley, who has a degree in architecture, is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Finley, an Alpha Tau Omega, now is with the FBI and is in charge of the FBI offices in his area.

We can't leave the weekend and its news until we tell you that the 'Californians for Nebraska' will be arriving this afternoon. We hear that the 206 transplanted Nebraskans who are making the trip are headquartering at the Villager, and that they have considerable fun planned for themselves. The group will, however, attend the pre-game

Summer already has made way for autumn, but many fond memories of the by-gone months remain. This morning for instance, we have an unusual summer anecdote from the Wayne Wickenkamp family of Park Manor.

It seems that, when searching high and low for their favorite spot to build a nest, a certain Mama and Papa Sparrow found they were particularly fond of the Wickenkamp's Volkswagen bus.

Unknowingly, Mr. Wickenkamp transported the three baby birds to work and back before one of the Wickenkamp children discovered an unusual 'noise' coming from the bus—and behold, there were the baby birds right under the floorboard!

Returning to more recent news in the suburban areas, we heard that Mr. and Mrs. Wickenkamp were guests at a brunch last Sunday morning. The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill, and was in honor of former Lincoln residents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Henninger, who now make their home in Algona, Iowa.

Mrs. W. W. Woodward returned home last Friday from a week-long vacation to Boston, Mass., where she was the house guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Friel, of Boston.

The suburban resident also did considerable visiting with her two-year-old granddaughter, Michele, and was introduced to her new grandson, Ryan Woodward Friel, who made his world debut on Friday, Sept. 24.

By the way, Mrs. Friel will be remembered as Greta Woodward, a graduate from Lincoln Southeast, and a former coed at the University of Nebraska received her degree, however from Smith College in North Hampton, Mass.

Reunions can bring back many happy memories of times gone by. When the reunion is for former college friends, it is also interesting to see the changes that have taken place since 'the good old days.'

Last weekend, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Shapiro welcomed a former schoolmate of Mrs. Shapiro's, Mrs. John Lavine, her husband and two children, Miriam and Mark to their Wellington Greens home. Mrs. Shapiro and Mrs. Lavine were classmates at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. Since that time, the Lavines have relocated in Chippewa Falls, Wis.

The families spent the weekend catching up on news, while the Lavine children had the opportunity to become acquainted with the two Shapiro children, Steffanie and Jackie. The weekend agenda included dinner out on Saturday evening, and Sunday was devoted to sightseeing, including a tour of Pioneers Park. The Lavines returned to their home on Monday afternoon.

Wellington Greens also has some new residents from Granville, Ohio. They are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shafer and their two children, Ann who is 10 years old, and Joe who is seven years old, who recently have arrived in town. Mr. Shafer is the accounting manager with State Farm Insurance Company.

The exciting news around the James Johnston Country Club Plaza home these last few days has been the addition of a niece to the family. Miss Melissa Ann Garner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Garner of Omaha, arrived on Thursday, Oct. 7, at University Hospital. Her mother, the former Jeanette L. Johnson, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Garner, an engineer, also is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

Melissa's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Garner of Lincoln, and Frank M. Johnson of Lexington.

But, that is not the only news involving Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. For homecoming on Saturday, they will be entertaining Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Armbrust of Omaha. Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Armbrust are Alpha Omicron Pi sorority sisters, and plan to attend some of the functions at the sorority house.

luncheon for which President and Mrs. Durward Varner and the University of Nebraska Regents are having at the Student Union.

Otto Baughman of San Gabriel, Calif., is the man in charge of arrangements for the California delegation.

Away back in the beginning we mentioned that Lincoln would have an interest in ABC's movie of the week on Dec. 11. A former Lincoln resident has a role in the movie.

Here's the story—

The young lady's name is Barbara Spence and until last February she was the manager of Scott's Pancake Shoppe at 13th and L Streets. From Lincoln Miss Spence went to Scottsdale, Ariz., and has been careering with the film industry.

Someone took a good look and decided that the former Lincoln resident was just the type for the role of secretary in the movie. So, off to Hollywood and the Columbia Studios she went. The title of the movie, filmed for Screen Gems, is "Gidget Gets Married."

Now we skip to Tuesday, Oct. 19. That is the date of the first dinner dance of the new season for the members of the Fifty Fifty Club. "Glittering Autumn" is to be the theme for the buffet dinner, and the dancing, and Hotel Lincoln is the place.

The party planners include members of the advisory board — Mr. and Mrs. Clair Shuman and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bridges — who will be assisted by the new officers, including Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Aron, president; Mr. and Mrs. William Mapes, vice-president; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Lock, second vice-president, and Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Capek, secretary-treasurer.

'Active' Is The Word For Suburbia

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston plan to drive to Omaha, and will be accompanied by their two sons, Jimmy and Robbie, and Mrs. Johnston's father, Frank Johnson. The brand new niece and granddaughter is, of course, the incentive.

Mrs. Nixon—WICS Chairman

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon will again serve as honorary national chairman of WICS (Women In Community Service) Day, Oct. 19, according to the announcement made by Mrs. Eddie Thomas, chairman of the board.

In accepting the appointment, Mrs. Nixon expressed her admiration for the dedicated efforts of WICS and her continuing interest in the outstanding achievements of the organization.

Mrs. J. J. Exon, a WICS volunteer during the past five years will be Nebraska's honorary chairman and will host a tea at the Governor's Mansion on Oct. 18 in honor of WICS volunteers.

This marks the sixth year that thousands of WICS volunteers throughout the country have been honored for their work with the Job Corps in helping disadvantaged young women break out of the cycle of poverty and enter the world of work.

Women in Community Service, Inc., is a coalition of five organizations including: Church Women United; National Council of Catholic Women; National Council of Jewish Women; National Council of Negro Women and the American G.I. Forum Auxiliary. These organizations provide volunteers for WICS and support its efforts in the community. Thus, WICS also serves as a bridge to unite many separate community elements in a single effort.

For one reason or another, autumn is a perfect time for learning new faces and the names that go with them — Students have new classmates and new teachers; teachers usually have an entire new set of students, and some new fellow instructors, besides.

The affair was held at the home of President Durward B. Varner — between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 and 8:30 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Adam Breckenridge served as hostess chairman.

Pictured at the tea are, from left to right, Mrs. Durward B. Varner, Mrs. Dale Gibbs, secretary of the Faculty Women's Club; Mrs. Francis Haskins, third vice president; Mrs. John L. Adams, president; and Mrs. William Thornton, first vice president.

The delegates were Miss Mary McBride and Mrs. Lillian McCutcheon. Also attending the two-day event held in Sioux City, Iowa, on Saturday, Oct. 9, and Sunday, Oct. 10, were Mrs. Emil Brodecky, president of the Lincoln Quota Club; and Mrs. Walter Biore and Mrs. Gaynell Johnson, alternate delegates.

Special guest speaker at the conference was Mrs. Isabell Sullivan of Sterling, Colo., the international representative.

BOOKS—"The Condor Passes"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

Perhaps one of the most vital differences between well-executed and poorly-executed fiction has to do with the extent to which the author makes his or her presence felt. When confronted with a badly-constructed narrative, the reader senses the struggle the writer underwent in an effort to produce the desired impression. In effect, style continually intrudes upon content.

Conversely, in the hands of a competent author, images and impressions seem almost to flow into the reader's consciousness without the cumbersome presence of an intermediary; and the total submersion of the perceiver in the creation is achieved.

If appraised on the basis of the foregoing criteria, Shirley Ann Grau's new book, "The Condor Passes" (Alfred A. Knopf, Inc.) might well be adjudged a masterpiece of good fiction. Mrs. Grau previously established her reputation as a capable artist (she won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 1964 with "The Keepers Of The House"), and "The Condor Passes" should serve to make believers out of the skeptical.

The story revolves around a most fascinating character—95-year-old multi-millionaire, Thomas Henry Oliver, who is portrayed in his waning years, sitting daily in a huge cane-backed chair in the midst of a room filled with exotic plants and birds; insensately (or so it seems) gazing out at the world which surrounds him. And a rather circumscribed world it is, inhabited only by the members of his family and his Black servant, Stanley.

Carrying her narrative into the past, the author recreates the story of the Old Man, his family and his fortune; and as she does so, characters emerge, slip into the background, and reappear again with startling clarity. First, and always it seems, there is the Old Man — Thomas Oliver, whose life began in Midwestern rural poverty, and progressed through a lucrative series of shady pursuits and illegal enterprises to its conclusion amidst the resplendency of New Orleans wealth.

Next appear the Old Man's two daughters — both rather eccentric, although their personalities manifest few, if any similarities. Perhaps it is because the author has just posed these two divergent characters — Anna, simple-minded, retiring and saintly; and Margaret, shrewd and overbearing in her forthrightness — that they emerge with such precision and intensity.

The remaining two major characters are the Old Man's son-in-law, Robert, a Cajun whom Oliver rescued from poverty; and Stanley, his servant, the only person in the Old Man's entourage who has escaped the influence of money and retained his perspective.

The story-line of "The Condor Passes," though adequate enough to lend continuity, is a secondary aspect of the book. In essence, the book consists of a series of finely-hewn character sketches, and Mrs. Grau has proved herself a master of this particular form of art. She has the capacity to probe into the innermost recesses of a character's psyche, deftly revealing complexities that would elude or overwhelm a less-accomplished writer.

In addition, her ability to observe phenomena through the eyes of those she creates makes her more than a mere describer of events and personalities. As might be expected, the Old Man's perceptions are particularly well-elucidated, as when he contemplates the effects of old age and death: "Once he'd tried to talk, to cry out, to say anything, so that they would know he was still there. He hadn't even been able to move his little finger. Not so much as that. He'd fallen into two pieces, slipping apart; mind and body, once together, separating more and more frequently."

Whereas most authors err on the side of overstatement, Mrs. Grau employs a subtlety of description that renders her writing at once simple, yet profound in the sensitivity of its expression. And, in keeping with the previously-mentioned criteria for excellence, she never places herself between the reader and her composition. "The Condor Passes" may be deemed a work of art because, in a significant sense, the creator has become secondary to the creation.

Abby: tell sister's doctor

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My sister, a widow for the past year and the mother of an 11-year-old son, has developed some rather strange habits lately.

I visited her last week (she has a three bedroom home in Staten Island) and I found her giving her son a bath. Not only that but she was clad in a skimpy pair of panties and a loose fitting bra.

The next day I noticed the only bed that had been slept in the night before was her twin bed. She said her son had been sleeping in her bedroom since her husband's death because she was "lonely," and because Staten Island is almost a "rural area" she is afraid to sleep in her bedroom alone. That may be, but why two of them in one twin bed?

I told her it was unnatural, and she denied anything unnatural was going on between her and her son.

I knew my sister always had some kooky ideas, but this is the kookiest. Shouldn't something be done about this? I am afraid she has gone completely off her rocker.

WORRIED SISTER

DEAR WORRIED: She is more than "kooky." She is disturbed. Tell her doctor what you've written to me. Her son needs to be rescued, and fast.

DEAR ABBY: We work in a large office with a young woman who has a tremendously large bosom. Because of this she is terribly self-conscious and she always wears a coat. Even in 95-degree weather.

Can you suggest some way we can help her get rid of this complex?

HER BOSOM BUDDIES

DEAR BUDDIES: If she is top-heavy to the point of being freakishly out of proportion, perhaps she should be told plastic surgeons can correct that condition. It may be easier for her to reduce the size of her bosom than to get rid of her complex.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

tricks — depositing his heart losers on dummy's clubs.

Now let's suppose East is on his toes and overtakes the king of diamonds at trick one. He can tell from dummy's high cards and his own that West must have a six-card suit for his overcall, and that another diamond lead will achieve nothing.

Pursuing this thought, East plays the deuce of hearts at trick two. If South follows low, West wins with the jack, continues with the king, and declarer eventually goes down one, losing two hearts, a diamond and a club. The same result accrues if South goes right up with the ace of hearts.

Once East recognizes the futility of a diamond continuation at trick two, he must base his hopes on the possibility of scoring two heart tricks for the defense. Playing the ace of diamonds on the king may appear to be excessively dramatic, but that is the only way East can make sure of pointing the defense in the right direction.

VW's 6.8% Price Hike Gives Edge To Detroit

•The New York Times

Basin Harbor, Vt. — Volkswagen, the largest seller of foreign cars in the United States, announced Wednesday 6.8% price increase for most of its 1972 models, giving Detroit a price edge in its battle with the import.

Volkswagen of America and Datsun said the increases were caused mainly by the upward revaluation of their nation's currencies resulting from President Nixon's policy announced Aug. 15 under which the U.S. is no longer redeeming overseas dollars for gold.

Second One

This is the second price increase announced by Volkswagen since Nixon imposed an import surcharge Aug. 15. On Aug. 25, Volkswagen announced increases ranging from $79 to $153 on Volkswagen models and from $138 to $457 on its Porsche and Audi cars.

Unlike American cars, the prices of imported cars do not fall under the wage-price freeze, one of whose aims is to make American products more competitive with foreign products.

Despite the challenge in the small car field by Ford, General Motors and American Motors, the major importers, Volkswagen, Toyota and Datsun, have kept about the same share of the American market as last year — 16%, or 1.6 million out of the expected 10 million cars to be sold this year.

Perkins Predicts

Stuart Perkins, president of Volkswagen of America, predicted that despite the price increases his company would sell about 575,000 cars in 1972, the same number it expects to sell by the end of 1971.

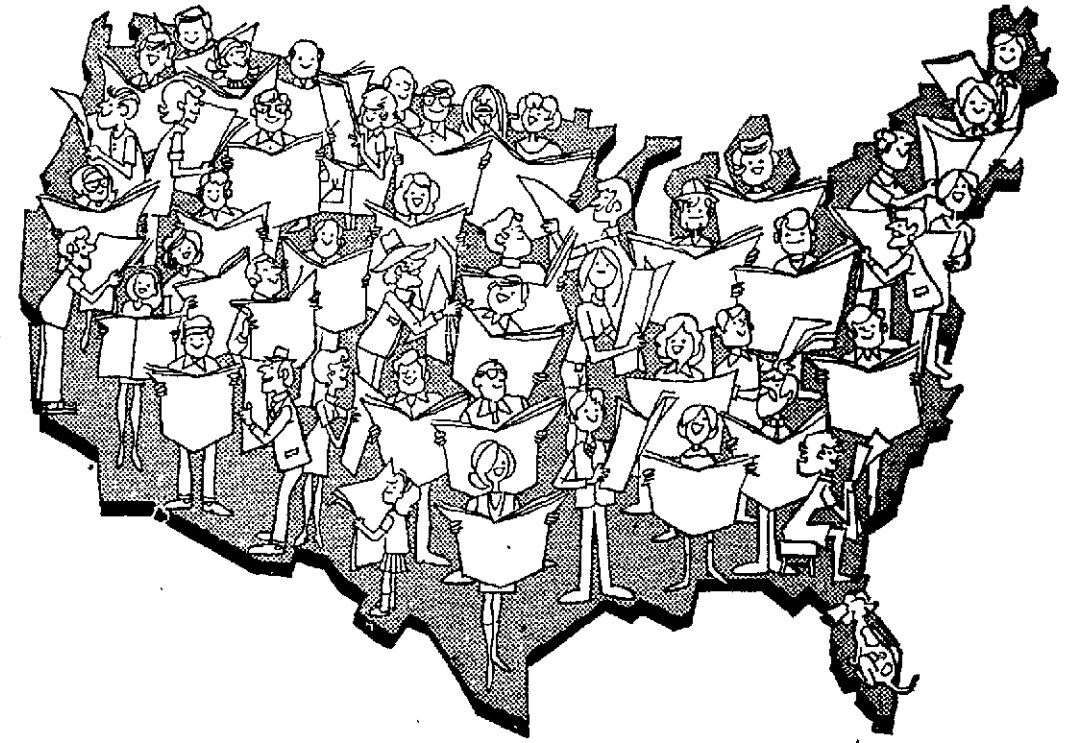

He said that even though the dock strike has crippled deliveries of new models on the west coast and production problems have left dealers with a shortage of cars, Volkswagen sales for September were one per cent ahead of sales for September 1970.

Plush Campout Commences In Patch Of Persian Desert

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Persepolis, Iran — In the campiest of all campouts, kings, presidents, sultans and prime ministers from more than 50 countries tented Wednesday night to celebrate the 2,500th birthday of the Persian Empire.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of the United States found himself sharing the same patch of desert stars with President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union, while the presidents of Pakistan and India, South Africa and Mauritania eyed each other placidly across lumps of cold caviar.

The international bonhomie spread a splendid daylong smile across the handsome features of the shah of Iran, who in the tumbling ruins of Darius the Great's palace at Persia's ancient capital is tossing what may well be the biggest imperial shindig since Nero got out of the catering business.

Designed By Parisians

Other guests checked into the glittering tent city that Paris designers caused to bloom in the desert include Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, King Moshoeshe II of Lesotho, Prince Mikasa of Japan, Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos, wife of the president of the Philippines, the elected king of Malaysia, a Belgian cardinal representing the Pope and an assortment of crown princess, grand dukes and international jetsetters.

While waiting to greet royal guests in a bizarre welcoming ceremony of honor guards and blaring bands, the shah told newsmen he hoped the visiting heads of state would take advantage of the intimacy of the desert caravansary to visit privately between tents and settle world problems.

But as the champagne flowed at the opening banquet presided over by the shah and Empress Farah in the imperial tent, there already were rumors of discontent among the tents.

Desert winds carried tales that President Kai-Uwe von Hassel of the West German Parliament was unhappy about being assigned to a nearby hotel with lesser guests while the princess of Afghanistan took over the German tent. The tent originally had been assigned to German President Gustav Heinemann, who dropped out at the last minute because of a retina operation.

Reporters in identical Mao suits from the People's Republic of China told newsmen that the Peking representative also had sent his regrets to the shah at the last minute due to a sudden illness and had asked the Chinese ambassador to Pakistan to take his place.

Speculation was rife that Kuo Mo-jo, director of the Chinese Academy of Science and a vice president of the Chinese Communist Party, may have come down with a quick case of Kissinger's Disease because of his low place on the protocol list.

In Fifth Place

For his extravaganzas the shah is sticking to the protocol rules set down long ago at the Congress of Vienna, which put Agnew and other number two nonregal world figures in fifth place on the caviar chart behind emperors and kings, presidents, prime ministers and governors-general and grand dukes.

As his majesty's guests went about unpacking their bags in the 50 tents tastefully decorated in the decor of their countries, 80 Swiss chefs from the winter brigade of the Palace Hotel at St. Moritz set about executing the sumptuous menus planned by Maxim's of Paris.

The star-shaped camp, complete with gambling casino and royal mess hall glittering with 20 crystal chandeliers, sits in the shadows of the towering columns and great stone staircase of the Perspolis ruins against a background of distant pink mountains.

A golf course has bloomed like a desert oasis on a great plain where in Persia's heyday polo teams with 150 horsemen apiece used to compete. Unfortunately, or maybe fortunately, for the royal guests who no longer wear mailed helmets, Vice President Agnew forgot to bring his golf clubs.

Bank Agrees To Loan Money For Film Rights

Hollywood — The president of the Motion Picture Association of America says the Export-Import Bank of Washington D.C. has agreed to loan domestic film producers up to 80% on foreign film rights.

Jack Valenti said in a statement released Wednesday the bank's action comes at a time when the motion picture industry is searching for ways to increase domestic film production.

VW's 6.8% Price Hike Gives Edge To Detroit

By The New York Times

Basin Harbor, Vt. — Volkswagen, the largest seller of foreign cars in the United States, announced Wednesday 6.8% price increase for most of its 1972 models, giving Detroit a price edge in its battle with the import.

The increase makes the price of the Beetle, Volkswagen's basic car, higher than all the main American minicars, the Pinto, Vega and the Gremlin.

Datsun of Japan also announced price increases of 7% on most of its 1972 models.

Volkswagen of America and Datsun said the increases were caused mainly by the upward revaluation of their nation's currencies resulting from President Nixon's policy announced Aug. 15 under which the U.S. is no longer redeeming overseas dollars with gold.

With the new increases, the price of the Volkswagen Beetle will rise by $131 — to $2,109 from $1,978. The prices of the

Second One

This is the second price increase announced by Volkswagen since Nixon imposed an import surcharge Aug. 15. On Aug. 25, Volkswagen announced increases ranging from $79 to $153 on Volkswagen models and from $138 to $457 on its Porsche and Audi cars.

Unlike American cars, the prices of imported cars do not fall under the wage-price freeze, one of whose aims is to make American products more competitive with foreign products.

Despite the challenge in the small car field by Ford, General Motors and American Motors, the major importers, Volkswagen, Toyota and Datsun, have kept about the same share of the American market as last year — 16%, or 1.6 million out of the expected 10 million cars to be sold this year.

Perkins Predicts

Stuart Perkins, president of Volkswagen of America, predicted that despite the price increases his company would sell about 575,000 cars in 1972, the same number it expects to sell by the end of 1971.

He said that even though the dock strike has crippled deliveries of new models on the west coast and production problems have left dealers with a shortage of cars, Volkswagen sales for September were one per cent ahead of sales for September 1970.

This is much lower, however, than the surge of sales for Detroit's big four car makers which ran 38% ahead of last year.

Plush Campout Commences In Patch Of Persian Desert

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Persepolis, Iran (AP) — In the campiest of all campouts, kings, presidents, sultans and prime ministers from more than 50 countries tented Wednesday night to celebrate the 2,500th birthday of the Persian Empire.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of the United States found himself sharing the same patch of desert stars with President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union, while the presidents of Pakistan and India, South Africa and Mauritania eyed each other placidly across lumps of cold caviar.

The international bonhomie spread a splendid daylong smile across the handsome features of the shah of Iran, who in the tumbling ruins of Darius the Great's palace at Persia's ancient capital is tossing what may well be the biggest imperial shindig since Nero got out of the catering business.

Designed By Parisians

Other guests checked into the glittering tent city that Paris designers caused to bloom in the desert include Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, King Moshoeshoe II of Lesotho, Prince Mikasa of Japan, Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos, wife of the president of the Philippines, the elected king of Malaysia, a Belgian cardinal representing the Pope and an assortment of crown princess, grand dukes and international jetsetters.

While waiting to greet royal guests in a bizarre welcoming ceremony of honor guards and blaring bands, the shah told newsmen he hoped the visiting heads of state would take advantage of the intimacy of the desert caravansary to visit privately between tents and settle world problems.

But as the champagne flowed at the opening banquet presided over by the shah and Empress Farah in the imperial tent, there already were rumors of discontent among the tents.

Desert winds carried tales that President Kai-Uwe von Hassel of the West German Parliament was unhappy about being assigned to a nearby hotel with lesser guests while the princess of Afghanistan took over the German tent. The tent originally had been assigned to German President Gustav Heinemann, who dropped out at the last minute because of a retina operation.

Reporters in identical Mao suits from the People's Republic of China told newsmen that the Peking representative also had sent his regrets to the shah at the last minute due to a sudden illness and had asked the Chinese ambassador to Pakistan to take his place.

Speculation was rife that Kuo Mo-jo, director of the Chinese Academy of Science and a vice president of the Chinese Communist Party, may have come down with a quick case of Kissinger's Disease because of his low place on the protocol list.

In Fifth Place

For his extravaganza the shah is sticking to the protocol rules set down long ago at the Congress of Vienna, which put Agnew and other number two nonregal world figures in fifth place on the caviar chart behind emperors and kings, presidents, prime ministers and governors-general and grand dukes.

Being neither royalty nor a head of state, Agnew was greeted at the Shiraz Airport by the prime minister of Iran and missed the royal reception line in Perspolis headed by the shah and his beautiful empress. Mrs. Marcos, a spectacularly handsome first lady in a puffsleeved white Philippine gown, was greeted at the entrance to the tent city by the empress while the shah stood back in obedience to protocol.

As his majesty's guests went about unpacking their bags in the 50 tents tastefully decorated in the decor of their countries, 80 Swiss chefs from the winter brigade of the Palace Hotel at St. Moritz set about executing the sumptuous menus planned by Maxim's of Paris.

The star-shaped camp, complete with gambling casino and royal mess hall glittering with 20 crystal chandeliers, sits in the shadows of the towering columns and great stone staircase of the Perspolis ruins against a background of distant pink mountains.

Two Women

Say They Want

To Get Married

Milwaukee, Wis. (AP) — Two young women have filed suit in U.S. District Court in an effort to get a marriage license.

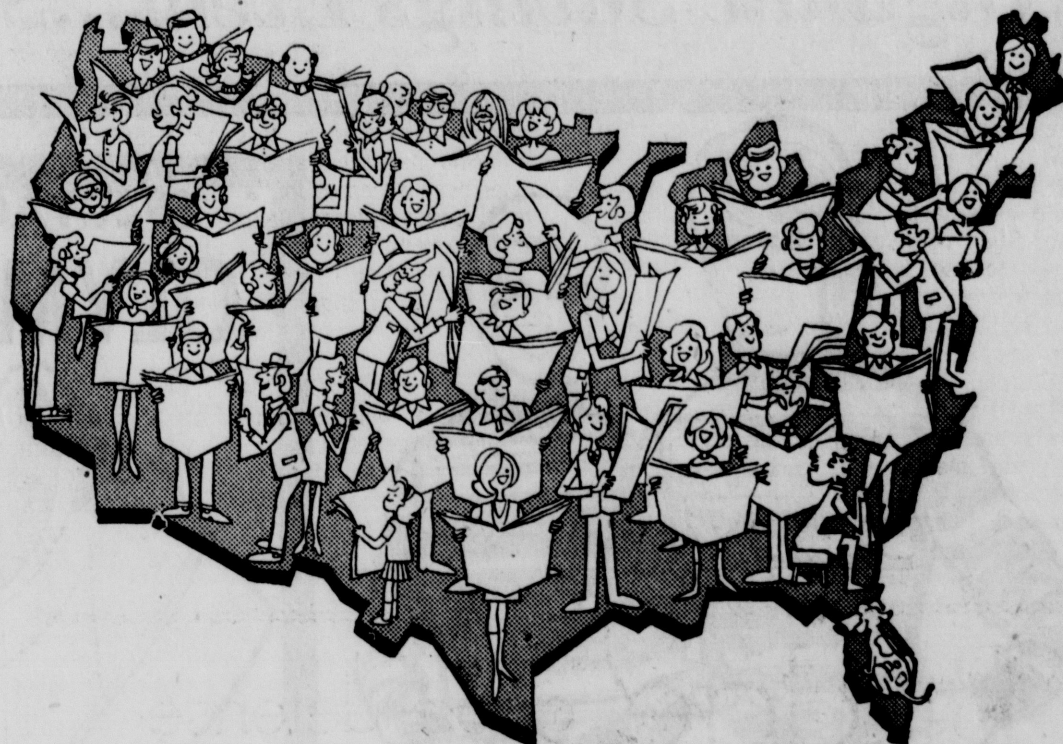

Donna Burkett, 25, and Manonia Evans, 21, alleged in their suit that Milwaukee County Clerk Thomas Zablocki's refusal to issue such a license was unconstitutional.

"They are desirous of obtaining the marriage license so that they may pursue the happiness that they enjoy" as guaranteed by the Wisconsin Constitution, the suit said, and are being denied due process and equal protection of the law.

The suit, filed Tuesday, said they were being deprived of marital benefits such as inheritance rights and the filing of a joint income tax return.

ROOKIES MAY, KISON TEAM TO WIN

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

Missouri Voting

Skipping around on a mid-October morning:

Although Missouri voters rejected an amendment which would have allowed pari-mutuel betting on horse races, racing in Nebraska was certainly well publicized in efforts to gain approval in the "show me" state.

The Kansas City Times ran a lengthy article on the front page of its Sept. 29 edition describing activities of the foes and backers of the bill. Beside the story was a large replica of a ticket stamped "Nebr. State Fair." On another page, an eight-column color picture was shown of the Columbus Races and excerpts about racing in the Cornhusker state included:

—There is no race track in America whose business is growing as fast as Ak-Sar-Ben. From 1960 to 1970 betting rose 41 per cent, attendance 20 per cent. Total purses are larger than at Churchill Downs.

—Nebraska has the lowest state take in the nation from each dollar bet.

—The system of ownership originally advocated by the first proponents of Missouri racing, but not incorporated into the vote, is the one (non-profit ownership) operated in Nebraska.

Defensive Powers

Defense seems to be the factor that allows National Football League teams to rise to the top. In each of the six divisions, the squad that has allowed the least number of points is the leader. The Baltimore Colts have permitted just 17 points in the first four encounters — an average of a little more than four points per game.

Although many patrons at the Des Moines-Waterloo exhibition hockey game at Pershing Auditorium last week, were disappointed about the 9-1 score, there is one fact to consider. Waterloo is composed of part-time players — they all hold other jobs as their main occupation and play just 21 games per season.

Des Moines is composed of players who play upwards of 80 games per season and they are playing hockey as their main occupation. That can make quite a difference in the final score.

How's this for perfection? Jan Stenerud of the Kansas City Chiefs hasn't missed an extra point kick since October of 1968 against Buffalo.

The jockey roster at Sportsman's Park in Chicago looks like a reunion of either riders who have campaigned in Nebraska this year or previous years. A sampling: Fred Ecoffey (the perennial leader at all state tracks except Ak-Sar-Ben); Don MacBeth; D. W. Whited; Bill Fleming; John Lively (this year's top rider at Ak); Lonnie Ray, Ken Jones; Burl McBride and Robert Mundorf.

Last week's record Nebraska exacta of $3,891.40 at Atokad Park in South Sioux City was so big officials could not flash it on the tote board. The track paid the two winners by check.

The winners were an 89-year-old lady and a middle-aged lady. Could the elderly lady have selected a 4-5 ticket because of the age of one of her children and could the middle-aged lady have been 45 years old?

Although the National Hockey League began action last weekend, the Omaha Knights of the Central Hockey League begin defense of their two consecutive CHL regular season and playoff titles Friday night at Tulsa. The Knights open at Ak-Sar-Ben on Oct. 29 against Kansas City.

Coach Billy Reay of the Chicago Black Hawks on sending two promising prospects to Chicago's Dallas club in the CHL. "In the case of young hockey players," he told a Chicago newspaper, "it's better to have them playing somewhere than sitting around up here."

Husker Black Shirts Take Over Lead In All Categories

... NU NO. 1 IN TOTAL DEFENSE, SCORING DEFENSE, RUSHING DEFENSE, PASS DEFENSE

Kansas City, Mo. — That last remaining defensive statistical lead in the Big Eight Conference has finally fallen to the Black Shirts, that marauding group of Nebraska defensemen, who finally got their shutout.

With middle guard Rich Glover neutralizing a Missouri double-team on the tackles by grabbing Tiger backs behind the line four times early, the Huskers limited Missouri to just nine yards rushing and wrestled the rushing defense lead from Kansas State. That was the last of the four departmental leads to slip into Nebraska's grasp. The Black Shirts are now allowing 83.4 yards, Kansas State but 94.0.

For the last three weeks, Nebraska has topped all in passing defense, total defense, and scoring defense. The same is true this week. The pass-defense reading is a fine 106.8, the total defense average is a low 190.2, and the scoring defense average is a very skimpy 5.4. No one has scored more than once this year against the Nebbraskans.

Offensively, the kingpin is still Oklahoma, though Nebraska's passing game, with the Jerry Tagge to Johnny Rodgers battery flying high, tops all with its 205.0 average, the highest mark the Huskers have ever accumulated.

The other three leads belong to Oklahoma. No one is even close in rushing offense, which isn't surprising since the Sooners also lead the nation with an unbelievable 427.8 per game. Not surprising either is the fact

"He's my best friend on the club," Kison said matter-of-factly.

Their steel-nerved performances, before an anticipated record television audience of close to 60 million watching the first night game in series history, pulled the Pirates even with the Orioles at two victories apiece in the best-of-seven showdown.

And it made a record Three Rivers Stadium crowd of 51,378 deliciously happy at the end of a tense, dramatic struggle in which their favorite, Roberto Clemente, lost a homer on a disputed foul call by umpire John Rice.

Kison came on for starter Luke Walker after the Orioles struck for three quick runs in the first inning, got the last out of the inning and was virtually untouchable through the next six innings.

Only Paul Blair was able to get a hit, a bloop double, as the kid who was pitching

Indians Fail To Renew Contract Of Lipon

Pittsburgh (AP) — The Cleveland Indians announced Wednesday night that the contract of interim manager Johnny Lipon would not be renewed for the 1972 season.

Lipon replaced Manager Alvin Dark midway through the 1971 season.

Braves Fire Schayes

Buffalo (AP) — Dolph Schayes has been fired from his post as head coach of the Buffalo Braves, Paul Snyder, the owner of the National Basketball Association club, announced Wednesday.

Schayes successor will be John McCarthy, a former Boston Celtics player who has served as a Braves scout.

for Waterbury in the Eastern League last year, set the Orioles down, never allowing another Baltimore runner to reach second base.

The Pirates battled back to tie on a run-producing double by Willie Stargell and two run-producing hits — a single and double — by Al Oliver, but were still deadlocked when the seventh inning began.

With one out, Bob Robertson got Pittsburgh started with a single to center off reliever Eddie Watt. Manny Sanguillen followed with another single to center. Pirates' Manager Danny Murtaugh immediately went to his bench, sending up Vic Davalillo to pinch hit for Jackie Hernandez.

Davalillo lofted a long fly to left center that Paul Blair raced under, but the usually sure-fingered fielder dropped the drive for an error.

Robertson, forced to hold up, was only able to reach third and Sanguillen, running with a full head of steam, raced halfway between second and third before he realized Robertson still was at third.

Sanguillen was eventually run down, leaving runners on first and third, as Murtaugh tapped young May for pinch-hit duty. May proceeded to snap the tie by lining a sharp single to right that scored Robertson.

Veteran reliever Dave Giusti took over for Kison, retired the last six men in order and saved it for the brash Kison, who is scheduled to be married this Sunday — the scheduled date of the seventh World Series game.

Until the Pirates finally broke through for the clincher in the seventh, it appeared that the teams might play all night in the precedent-shattering game under lights.

For the Pirates were robbed at least once and possibly twice.

The second instance occurred in the sixth inning when, with men on first and third, Orioles' third baseman Brooks Robinson made a diving catch of Rich Hebner's line

—DANGEROUS POTENTIAL—

Bob Says Kansas Won't Sit On Ball

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney said Wednesday there's one thing he doesn't expect Kansas to do Saturday when the Jayhawks face his Huskers.

"I don't look for Kansas to sit on the ball," he said. "We're expecting them to throw it and to even try to come up with some things that might be a little unusual."

And he's also looking for another possibility from the Jayhawks this season.

"I think Kansas can develop into a good football team," he observed. "They could become a heckuva good team as the season goes along."

"They've played enough good football already this season to prove that they have the potential to be dangerous."

And with defensive end Eddie Sheats in the lineup, Devaney figures, "Kansas is a better defensive team. They've missed him when he hasn't been in there."

The Huskers may have suffered a loss in the depth department Wednesday with a alternate safety Tom McClelland injuring a knee.

"He looks extremely doubtful for Saturday at this time," Devaney pointed out.

Huskers Again

Nebraska continues to rate the favorite's role with the nation's collegiate football forecasters for the sixth straight week.

Charlie Smith of the Kansas City United Press International bureau, who missed by only two points in picking last week's 36-0 win over Missouri correctly, this week sees the Huskers winning by 49-20, commenting, "Jayhawks can't stop Cornhuskers offensive line."

Will Grimsley of The Associated Press tabs NU by 38-13, observing, "There appears no stopping the 'we're No. 1' runaway freight until the Nov. 25 collision with Oklahoma."

Youngsters Get Chance To See Game

Special arrangements are being made to permit young people 18 years of age and under to see the Nebraska-Kansas football game Saturday via closed-circuit black and white television in the Coliseum at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Tickets for the closed-circuit telecast for youth will be $1 including tax. The tickets will go on sale at 12:15 p.m. Saturday only at the Coliseum.

The Board of Regents last Friday directed NU to provide a closed-circuit telecast of the Kansas game for young people 18 years of age and under.

Dr. Miles Tommeraaen, director of business and finance, said the telecast of this game will be restricted to young people 18 years of age and under.

University station KUON-TV will provide the telecast to the Coliseum. Proceeds from the sale of tickets will finance the cost of the special telecast.

A University official estimates the cost of the closed circuit telecast at between $2,500 and $3,000.

Royal Claims OU Better Team

Austin, Tex. (AP) — Coach Darrell Royal of Texas said Wednesday he thinks second-ranked Oklahoma, which walloped the Longhorns 49-27, is better than No. 1 Nebraska.

Royal was narrating films of the Texas-Oklahoma game for the Longhorn Club when someone yelled, "Do you think Oklahoma is better than Nebraska, coach?"

"Yeah, I sure do," replied Royal.

Husker Cagers Paced By Jura

... DEPTH, COMPETITION THE KEY

Star Sports Writer

Joe Cipriano hopes to mix depth, versatility and experience into this year's Nebraska basketball team to achieve a winning campaign.

Paced by 6-10 center Chuck Jura, who bids for all-America honors, the NU coach is counting on depth and solid competition at the guard and forward positions to spark the Huskers past the 18-8 record of a year ago.

"Last year we played with two centers (graduated Leroy Chalk and Jura)," Cipriano said. "Now we're going to find more depth and competition than last year and I'm sure that's going to help us."

Speaking at NU's annual press day, Wednesday, the NU coach said the Huskers will start practice Friday but won't hold any game-type scrimmages until two or three weeks later.

Cipriano's main problem revolves around finding adequate replacements for Chalk, NU's all-time leading rebounder, and flashy Marvin Stewart, who sparked last year's Huskers with a 21.4 point-per-game output.

At guards, Cipriano can

K-State Plans Artificial Track

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State University Athletic Director Ernie Barrett says the university is mounting a concerted drive to install an artificial track before next spring's Big Eight Conference outdoor meet.

Barrett said the present six-lane track will be enlarged to eight lanes in a project with an estimated total cost of $150,000.

The athletic director said at a news conference Tuesday night the drive would be conducted by K-State alumni.

Big 8 Football Briefs

Kansas

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Kansas football Coach Don Fambrough said Wednesday he had nothing fancy up his sleeve for the Jayhawks' meeting with top-ranked Nebraska Saturday.

"We're just going with what we've got and trying to improve it," Fambrough commented after his team ran through a spirited workout.

The practice session ended with running back Steve Conley driving a careful of players around Memorial Stadium in an impromptu "victory ride."

The coach described the defending national champions as a team which has no weaknesses.

"If they did, they wouldn't be where they are," he commented.

Oklahoma

Norman, Okla. (AP) — For the third straight day the Oklahoma Sooners were not at full strength as several key players missed Wednesday's practice.

Campbell Dies Of Heart Attack

York (UP) — Funeral services will be held here Thursday for Cleo J. Campbell, 48, veteran Nebraska baseball figure.

Campbell died of an apparent heart attack Monday after helping capture three suspected marijuana possessors here.

Campbell had officiated many baseball games throughout the state and was an American Legion coach for many years.

Survivors include his widow, one son, his mother and a sister.

Defensive end Raymond Hamilton and left halfback Joe Wylie did not work out during the drills. Hamilton has not recovered from his ankle injury, but did run during the practice.

Wylie, also suffering from an ankle injury, did not suit up. Trainer Ken Rawlinson said the speedy junior was resting. It is still doubtful that Wylie will play Saturday.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson said Wednesday the Wildcats would need to play a

Sutton Seeking Balance For Creighton Cage Club

... BAPTISTE GONE, BUT BLUEJAYS STILL DEEP

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

—Balance. That's what coach Eddie Sutton hopes the Creighton Bluejay basketball team will have this season.

Gone from last year's 14-11 team is 6-9 Cyril Baptiste, who led the Bluejays in scoring and rebounding. Baptiste, who was cut from the NBA Bay Warriors Wednesday, had a year of eligibility left but passed it up in favor of signing of pro contract.

"We should have nine or 10 players with about the same ability this year," Sutton said.

"We plan on running and pressing more with our smaller size which we consider our weak point. However we feel we'll have both depth and enthusiasm to make up for lack of height."

"This team is probably the most dedicated and best conditioned I've had."

Included on Creighton's roster are six varsity, nine freshmen, one transfer and one nonplayer from last year's team. The transfer is 6-8 J. B. LeBlanc from San Francisco City Junior College who Sutton rates as one of the strong contenders for the starting center position.

"Right now I'd say there is only one player who is a leading candidate for a starting spot with the rest still very much uncertain," Sutton noted.

The other centers who Sutton considers strong possibilities for a starting berth is 6-7 junior Gene Ellefson and 6-6 senior Paul Fesko. "We hope one of these players will emerge as a starter and the others are good backups," Sutton pointed out.

Besides Lewis the leading guard contenders are sophomores Bimbo Pietro and Richie Smith and junior Bill Manning.

At the forwards Sutton finds the most talent of the positions with sophomores 6-7 Gene Harmon, 6-5 Ted Wuebben, 6-5½, Wayne Heinrich and 6-6½ Ralph Bobik joining senior 6-5 Pat Bresnahan, Ellefson and Fesko.

"This year's team will be more 'entertaining' than previous squads because we're blessed with speed and quickness," said Sutton. "We have a bunch of real dedicated ball players who are willing to work hard to be good."

Sutton indicated the Bluejays will again rely heavily on a man-for-man defense but promised more presses will be used.

"We'll be more of an 'outside' team this year, going for the good percentage outside shot," explained Sutton. "We don't have a big man to work the inside like we did last year."

Sutton expressed high hopes for the team's chances especially if the team is consistent.

"We play four of the top eight teams and seven of the top 20 in pre-season ratings," Sutton said. "We'll have to be consistent if we're to win our share of ball games."

High School Grid Teams Avoiding Parker's 'Kiss Of Death'

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Last year at this time it was the automatic 'Kiss of Death' to be the winning choice in Parker's Picks.

It got so bad that after one Capital City crosstown clash a boosterous booster threatened the prep picker with, "Don't you ever pick us again." His favorite had just dropped its second in a row after being tabbed the favorite both times.

This season, with the batting average continuing to float in the 80 percent range, things have been better.

Last week all four games involving Lincoln schools were correctly forecast. Will things go as well this weekend. My bodyguard hopes so!

Lincoln High vs. Southeast, Seacrest Field, Friday night — The Links found their offense in the second half against Northeast. But the Knights, except for a sluggish performance against Fremont two weeks ago, have shown even more zip.

Sioux City Heelan vs. Pius X,

Thunderbolt Field, Friday night — One of Iowa's best. A little bit too much to handle.

Lincoln East at Topeka, Friday night — A second interstate clash. Topeka started out strong this fall, but now has a 3-2 record. Nebraska's best to win.

Hastings at Northeast, Seacrest Field, Saturday night

— The Tigers, a pushover the past two years, are much better this fall. But we'll take the Rockets.

Devaney, Krause In Disagreement On Current Red-Shirting Policy

Krause, speaking to the Indianapolis News Downtown Quarterback Club, called for elimination of the rule which allows college athletes to spread their eligibility over five years by remaining out of competition one year.

He said, "It's very expensive to have 20 to 30 athletes hanging around your campus waiting for another year of athletics. Today we have student athletes and all of our athletes graduate."

"When you have 20 or 30 red shirts on a team, like

Cards' Torre Said Player Of The Year

St. Louis (UPI) — The Sporting News announced Wednesday that St. Louis Cardinal third baseman Joe Torre has been named as the Major League Player of the Year.

Torre won the major league batting crown this season with a .363 average and his 137 runs batted in led the major leagues.

Torre hit 24 homers to go with eight triples and 34 doubles.

Torre's lifetime batting average is now .305 — from .297 last year — and he has a .326 mark in his three seasons with the Cardinals.

He hit 22 game-winning RBIs to lead the Cardinals to a second-place finish in the National League East. The Cardinal captain missed only two of the 163 games played.

Torre was the No. 2 hitter in the National League last year with a .325 average.

Torre, who slimmered down from 228 pounds in spring camp in 1970 to 203 this season, said he relies on his strength rather than speed.

"I just try to hit the ball somewhere hard," he said. "I'm a line-drive hitter, not a home-run hitter. I try to hit everything back hard through the middle. I know I'm not going to get many leg hits."

Torre, 31, went hitless in only 23 games. He got one hit in 67 games, two hits in 42 games, three hits in 21 games and four hits in three games.

The husky righthanded swinger batted .363 against righties and .363 against lefties.

Nebraska, of course you're going to be strong. But I assume the young men go to school for an education," Krause said.

He added, "I know that 400 schools in the NCAA face a financial deficit in their athletic programs. For the boys and for those reasons, I think that the rule allowing red shirting should be eliminated."

Earlier in the program, Devaney, speaking by phone hookup from Lincoln, Neb., said, "There's nothing wrong with red shirting... giving a boy five years of education, whether he's an athlete or not. I know the coaches in the Big Ten like the rule and I just haven't been able to get it by the faculties."

Bahensky Wins Top Golf Honor

... WHITE FINISHES 2ND

Dan Bahensky, despite failing to win any of the five tournaments used to tabulate points toward the award, has won the fourth annual Outstanding Nebraska Amateur Golfer trophy by a sizable margin.

The young St. Paul golfer scored 77 1/2 points with 20 points awarded for a first, 19 for second, etc., to top runner-up Jim White of Hastings, who scored 67 1/2 points, and third place finisher Charlie Bomer of North Platte, who finished with 66 1/2.

The closest Bahensky came to a championship in the five tournaments was the final one where he lost in a sudden-death playoff to Bob Moore of Evergreen, Colo., in the Indian Summer Open at Hastings' Lochland Country Club.

Bahensky finished second in both the Tournament of Champions at Grand Island's Riverside Golf Club and the Governor's Sweepstakes at Lincoln's Holmes and Pioneers Park courses, tied for eighth in the Men's State Amateur at the Lincoln Country Club and was 16th in the Norfolk Labor Day Tournament.

Tournament winners with their final spot in the standings for the Outstanding Nebraska Amateur Golfer in parenthesis were:

Tournament of Champions — Don Bridge (9th) of Norfolk; Governor's Sweepstakes — Rick Schultz (8th) of Omaha; Men's State — Jim Shade (5th) of Norfolk; Norfolk Labor Day — Mike Ley (4th) of Lincoln; Indian Summer Open — Bob Moore (not eligible) of Evergreen, Colo.

The award is sponsored by Dick Watson and Henry Hughes of Golf Courses, Inc., a golf course designing and building firm.

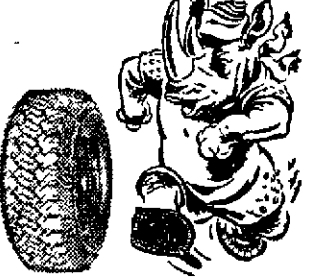

Previous winners have been R. B. Lau of Lincoln in 1968, Jim Shade of Norfolk in 1969 and Frank Rose of Fairbury in 1970.

The winner receives a trophy, plus a gift certificate for $200, good at any golf pro shop in Nebraska.

The final top 20:

1 Dan Bahensky, St. Paul	77 1/2
2 Jim White, Hastings	67 1/2
3 Charlie Bomer, North Platte	66 1/2
4 Mike Ley, Lincoln	63

Capital Needs Baseball Team Says President

Washington (AP) — President Nixon told District of Columbia officials Wednesday he thought the nation's capital deserved a major league baseball team and should have one.

Mayor Walter Washington, talking with newsmen after an hour-long discussion in the President's office on a range of urban affairs, said Nixon said he would like to see a major league team move here to replace the Washington Senators, who are shifting to Dallas-Fort Worth next season.

The discussion was in "general terms" and the President offered no specific suggestions, Washington said.

He also reported Nixon was delighted with the Washington Redskins' unbeaten record in the National Football League this year and praised Coach George Allen and his players not only for their gridiron accomplishments but for the way they have "contributed to the spirit of the city."

Going to move soon? Be sure to notify the Circulation Department, giving both your old and new address.

Burdette Named Pitching Coach

Atlanta (AP) — Lew Burdette, who won 179 games in 12 1/2 seasons with the Braves, was named the club's pitching coach Wednesday.

He replaces Harry Dorish, who has been offered another job in the organization.

The 44-year-old Burdette played a total of 18 seasons in the big leagues as a member of the New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals, Braves, Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Phillies and California Angels.

In the 1957 World Series Burdette won three games and pitched 24 consecutive scoreless innings as the Braves then in Milwaukee, became world champions by defeating the Yankees four games to three.

Nebraska Agricultural Council Opposes Delay In Personal Property Tax Relief

The Lincoln Star 27
Thursday, October 14, 1974

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Nebraska Agricultural Council discussed Wednesday the personal property tax question with Gus Lieske, director of the state Department of Administrative Services present for part of the discussion.

The council, made up of representatives of Nebraska farm organizations, polled its members for their reaction to Gov. Exon's personal property tax proposal which would provide relief on a limited scale over a ten year period.

When speaking officially for their organizations, the council members indicated that several farm groups were formulating a new position on the property tax question. However, when polled as individuals for their appraisal of what they expected their various organizations would do, there was general agreement that a delay in the tax relief was not acceptable.

"Cannot Wait 10 Years" Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union said, "We expect to ask for a 50% reduction the first year and a total elimination of the tax within three years. We are losing 2,000 farmers a year and we simply cannot wait 10 years."

Berck, commenting on the possibility of replacing the property tax with a tax on intangible property, expressed doubt that such a bill would pass the legislature. "I don't think you will find enough support for this kind of tax unless the courts declare property tax for schools unconstitutional. Then almost anything could happen."

While agreement that the personal property tax had to go now was general, there was a noticeable lack of agreement on what to replace the tax with and how to operate the change that would be needed.

Method Questioned Lieske asked, "Where do we get the immediate relief from? Do we get this by dropping a service or do you raise income and sales taxes?"

Lieske estimated that the change would force a minimum of a half cent addition to the sales tax and 5% to the income tax the first year and that the tax increase could go to 3% on a sales tax and as much as 15% on the income tax.

"It would depend on how far you go on the tax in giving relief, but I don't think you can pass a tax relief bill for farmers alone," Lieske said.

Business Considered Burke agreed. "There is no possibility of passing a property tax bill without including the businessmen, large and small, and if we are going to be realistic we need to remember that," the veteran statehouse farm lobbyist said.

The council took no formal action on the property tax issue but did vote on four issues: feed grain loan rates, a strategic reserve, a release of funds for the REAP program and opposition to the dock strikes and other strikes that hurt farm income.

Nebraska Agricultural Council Opposes Delay In Personal Property Tax Relief

The council voted to ask for the establishment of a strategic reserve of grain to protect the nation's feed grain and wheat supply and that the reserve be insulated from the market by 120% of parity as a minimum sale price. The resolution included provisions for a turnover of the reserve grain to keep the quality high and for a preference for on-the-farm storage of the grain in the reserve.

Loan Rate Asked Council members voted to ask for a feed grain loan rate on the national level based on $1.35 per bushel for no 2 corn after hearing the position of the Nebraska Farmers Union which had used the same figure.

Council members protested the failure of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (U.S.D.A.) to release funds for the Rural Environmental Protective Agency (REAP) for use in the states in conservation and pollution fighting efforts for rural areas.

The council took note of the huge losses to agriculture resulting from the West Coast dock strike and voted to ask for legislation to prevent the striking of unions that had a direct or indirect effect on farm income. The council also strongly opposed the practice of permitting strikers to receive food stamps and other forms of public assistance.

The Nebraska Agriculture Council is made up of representatives of several farm organizations in Nebraska who meet once a month in an effort to find areas of agreement that they can jointly support.
